

FRENCH TROOPS FALL BACK AGAIN

Paris Despatch Admits That Beaumont Has Been Evacuated—Fourth Fortified Village North of Verdun to be Abandoned.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Paris, Feb. 25.—French troops have evacuated Beaumont, five and one-half miles north of Verdun, it was officially reported by the war office today.

It was announced that the French have established their lines behind Beaumont along the heights east of Champagneville and south of Ornes. There was a comparative lull in the fighting last night, the war office speaking of the fighting as being "less violent." The Germans, for the first time in four nights, did not deliver any attacks during the darkness.

Beaumont is the fourth fortified village north of Verdun to be evacuated by the French, the others being Hamont, Brabant sur Meuse and Samogneux.

Champagneville lies above a big bend of the Meuse river, five miles north of Verdun. It occupies the western flank of a chain of hills stretching north and southeast of the Meuse river.

The admission of the retirement of the French behind Beaumont indicates that the Germans have gained approximately a mile more of ground.

WOMAN FREED IN POISON PEN CASE

Mrs. Crovette of Napanoch Arraigned in Court at Flushing—Recipient of Letters Charged With Writing Them.

Another "poison pen" mystery was solved Wednesday in police court in Flushing, L. I., where Miss Mary Everson, of Little Neck, L. I., was disclosed as the author of these missives which she had had written by a 15 year old girl, Alvena Waltje. But the mystery was not solved until Mrs. Gabriella Crovette, a former resident of Little Neck had been haled from her home in Napanoch and placed under arrest for the sending of letters.

Mrs. Crovette's release followed the discovery by a detective that the letters were all in the little girl's handwriting. It also developed that Miss Everson had once quarrelled with Crovette over a neighborly row over a dog when they were neighbors in Little Neck. The charge placed against Miss Everson was that of "endangering the morals of a minor."

STEAMER COLLIDES WITH SCHOONER

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 25.—Advices received here today by E. C. Lohr, general manager of the Merchants and Miners Lines, state that the steamer Cretan of that line was in collision with an unidentified schooner off Cape Hatteras early this morning but neither was seriously damaged.

The captain of the Cretan however decided to take no chances and wireless "S. O. S." calls until the steamer Dorothea of the Bull Line responded. The Dorothea took off the Cretan's passengers and is heading for Norfolk. None of the passengers was seriously injured. The Dorothea is expected to reach here tonight.

The Cretan also is expected to reach Norfolk some time tonight.

IT PAYS TO TREAT SEED OATS FOR SMUT

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—The average annual losses from smut in oats are greater than those caused by any other preventable cereal disease in the United States. Treating the seed with hot water or with formaldehyde solution before sowing is an easy, cheap and effective way of preventing this disease. The latter method, which is the one most available for general use, is here briefly summarized. Both methods are described in detail in Farmers' Bulletin 507, which will be sent free on application to the secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Mix the formalin (a commercial preparation which is 37 per cent formaldehyde by weight) with water at the rate of 1 pound (a little less than a pint) to 40 gallons of water. The grain may be either loosely inclosed in sacks or put loose into a tub or vat with the solution. Agitate the sacks or stir the loose grain occasionally so that the entire surface of every grain will be thoroughly wet. Instead of being immersed the seed oats may be spread on a clean floor or canvas and sprinkled with the solution and shoveled over during the process so that they will be wet evenly as in the other method. Not over a gallon of solution will be needed for every bushel of dry grain. After sprinkling, shovel the seed into a pile, cover it with sacks wet with the solution, and allow it to stand for at least two hours before spreading it out to dry.

Precautions.

The oats may be seeded as soon as dry enough to run through the drill. If the seed is still moist, however, the drill must be set to sow more to the acre than if it is dry. The quantity which should be sown may be determined by measuring a given bulk before and after treatment and figuring the proportion of increase. After treating do not expose the seed to freezing until it is thoroughly dry. Do not allow the treated seed to come into contact with the old sacks, bins or machinery in which there may be smut spores. If such must be used, scald them or wash them first with the formaldehyde solution.

Manager Hook of the Ulster County Farm Bureau urged farmers to use this treatment last year and is strongly advocating it this year.

Pistoler Made a Mistake.

Mistaking a cartridge for a brass rivet, caused Frederick Pistoler of Pine Grove to sustain serious injuries Thursday morning. Pistoler was trying to fix some harness and picked up what he believed was a rivet and began hammering it, when suddenly there was an explosion, and part of two fingers on his left hand were torn away, and his face was severely cut up. How the cartridge got into the rivet box is a mystery. Pistoler was brought to Saugerties and Dr. Dierling dressed his injuries.

WILSON DEFINES HIS ATTITUDE

Letter in Reply to One From Senator Stone Definitely States His Views on the Submarine and Armament Question.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The president last night made public this letter to Senator Stone, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations:

The White House, Washington, Feb. 24, 1916.

My Dear Senator—I very warmly appreciate your kind and frank letter of today and feel that it calls for an equally frank reply.

You are right in assuming that I shall do everything in my power to keep the United States out of war. I think the country will feel no uneasiness about my course in that respect. Through many anxious months I have striven for that object, amidst difficulties, more manifold than can have been apparent upon the surface, and so far I have succeeded. I do not doubt that I shall continue to succeed. The course which the Central European Powers have announced their intention of following in the future with regard to undersea warfare seems for the moment to threaten insuperable obstacles, but its apparent meaning is so manifestly inconsistent with explicit assurances recently given by those Powers with regard to their treatment of merchant vessels on the high seas that I must believe that explanations will presently ensue which will put a different aspect upon it. We have had no reason to question their good faith or their fidelity to their promises in the past, and I for one feel confident that we shall have none in the future.

But in any event our duty is clear. No nation, no group of nations, has the right while war is in progress to alter or disregard the principles which all nations have agreed upon in mitigation of the horrors and sufferings of war; and if the clear rights of American citizens should ever unhappily be bridged or denied by any such action, we should, it seems to me, have in honor no choice as to what our own course should be.

For my own part, I cannot consent to any abridgment of the rights of American citizens in any respect. The honor and self-respect of the nation are involved. We covet peace, and shall preserve it at any cost but the loss of honor. To forbid our people to exercise their rights for fear we might be called upon to vindicate them would be a deep humiliation indeed. It would be an implicit, all but an explicit, acquiescence in the violation of the rights of mankind everywhere, and of whatever nation or allegiance. It would be a deliberate abdication of our hitherto proud position as spokesmen, even amidst the turmoil of war, for the law and the right. It would make everything this government has attempted, and everything that it has achieved during this terrible struggle of nations, meaningless and futile.

It is important to reflect that if in this instance we allowed expediency to take the place of principle the door would inevitably be opened to still further concessions. Once accept a single abatement of right, and many other humiliations would certainly follow, and the whole fine fabric of international law might crumble under our hands piece by piece. What we are contending for in this matter is of the very essence of the things that have made America a sovereign nation. She cannot yield them without conceding her own impotency as a nation, and making virtual surrender of her independent position among the nations of the world.

I am speaking, my dear Senator, in deep solemnity, without heat, with a clear consciousness of the full responsibility of my office, and as you are sincere and devoted friend, I should unhappily differ, were issues so momentous as these are involved we must, just because we are friends, speak our minds without reservation.

Faithfully yours, WOODROW WILSON. To Hon. William J. Stone, United States Senator.

Senator Stone's letter to the president follows:

U. S. Senate, Washington, Feb. 24. Dear Mr. President:

Since Senator Kern, Mr. Flood, and I talked with you on Monday evening, I am more troubled than I have been for many a day. I have not felt authorized to repeat our conversation, but I have attempted, in response to numerous inquiries from my colleagues, to state to them, within the confidence that they should observe my general understanding of your attitude. I have stated my understanding of your attitude to be substantially as follows:

That while you would deeply regret the rejection by Great Britain of Mr. Lansing's proposal for the disarmament of merchant vessels of the Allies, with the understanding that Germany and her allies would not fire upon a merchant ship if she hauled to when summoned, not attempting to escape, and that the German warships would only exercise the admitted right of visitation and capture, and would not destroy the captured ship except in circumstances that reasonably assured the safety of passengers and crew, you were of the opinion that if Great Britain and her allies rejected the proposal and insisted upon arming her merchant ships she would be within her right under international law.

Also that you would feel disposed to allow armed vessels to be cleared from our ports. Also that you are not favorably disposed to the idea of this government taking any definite steps toward preventing American citizens from embarking upon armed merchant vessels. Furthermore, that you would consider it your duty if a German warship should fire upon an armed merchant vessel of the enemy upon which American citizens were passengers to hold Germany to strict account.

Numerous members of the senate and the house have called to discuss this subject with me. I have felt that the members of the two houses who are to deal with this grave question were entitled to know the situation we are confronting as I understand it to be.

I think I should say to you that the members of both houses feel deeply concerned and disturbed by what they read and hear. I have heard of some talk to the effect that some are saying that after all it may be possible that the program of preparedness, so called, has some relation to just a situation as we are now called upon to meet.

I have counseled all who have talked with me to keep cool; that this whole business is still the subject of diplomacy, and that you are striving to the utmost to bring about some peaceable adjustment, and that in the meantime congress should be careful not to "ball up" a diplomatic situation by any kind of hasty and ill-considered action. However, the situation in congress is such as to excite a sense of deep concern in the minds of careful and thoughtful men.

I have felt that it is due to you to say this much. I think you understand my personal attitude with respect to this subject. As much and deeply as I could have, I have radically disagreed with you. I find it difficult from my sense of duty and responsibility to consent to plunge this nation into the vortex of this world war because of the unreasonable obstinacy of any of the powers upon the one hand, or, on the other hand, of foolishness, amounting to a sort of moral treason against the Republic, of our people recklessly risking their lives on armed and belligerent ships. I cannot escape the conviction that such would be so monstrous as to be indefensible.

I want to be with you and to stand by you, and I mean to do so up to the last limit; and I want to talk with you and Secretary Lansing with the utmost frankness—to confer with you and have your judgment and counsel—and I want to be kept advised as to the course of events, as it seems to me I am entitled to be.

In the meantime I am striving to prevent anything being done by any senator or member calculated to embarrass your diplomatic negotiations. Up to the last you should be left free to act diplomatically as you think for the best to settle the questions involved. I need hardly say that my wish is to help, not to hinder you.

With the highest regard and most sympathetic consideration, I have the honor, Mr. President, to be, Very sincerely yours, W. J. STONE.

DAY'S WAR NEWS AT A GLANCE

Washington—President Wilson today called upon Congress leaders to end all agitation for interference by Congress in international situation. Insisted honor United States at stake and could be no back down from position taken that rules of international law shall be observed in submarine campaign.

Berlin—Six more positions fortified by French for defense of Verdun captured by Germans. Tenth battle being now only 4 1/2 miles north of Verdun. Total prisoners captured ten thousand.

Paris—French troops evacuated Beaumont. Establishing lines behind that village. Reported fighting less violent.

Rome—Three Austrian submarines been sunk in Adriatic last two months.

Petrograd—Russians won another great victory over Turks in Persian territory. Ottoman forces being in full retreat toward Kermanshah with Russians in pursuit.

Vienna—Austro-Hungarians placed Durazzo, Albania, under siege. Italians defeated in Albania.

Constantinople—British defeated in fighting on Irak front, Mesopotamia.

WILSON DEMANDS A FREE HAND

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 25.—President Wilson today called upon Speaker Champ Clark, Majority Leader Claude Kitchin and Representative Henry D. Flood, chairman of the house foreign affairs committee, to end all agitation for interference by congress in the international situation. For nearly an hour the entire situation was canvassed. The president stood squarely on his letter to Senator Stone, made public last night. He insisted that the honor of the United States was at stake and that there could be no backing down from the position taken that the rules of international law shall be observed by the central European powers in conducting their submarine campaign.

The house Democratic leaders told the president they would do what they could to prevent any interference by congress until all diplomatic measures had been exhausted. They went to the capitol to take the matter up with members generally.

After he had returned to the capitol, Speaker Clark said:

"I think that the chances are that Germany will postpone this threatened performance until after March 15 or perhaps until April 1. There are rumors to that effect."

The speaker said that if Germany did postpone her threatened action the excitement in the house would automatically postpone itself.

The speaker was designated to do the talking for the house leaders. He declared President Wilson had been told flatly that in the present temper of the house a resolution warning Americans off belligerent ships would pass the house two to one. The speaker said:

"The president's letter to Senator Stone, and Senator Stone's letter to the president set forth the sum and substance of the conference outside of an explanation made as to the temper of the house regarding the diplomatic situation with Germany and some arguments on both sides."

"We told the president how the house felt, in our judgment. I told him that this warning resolution would carry two to one if it ever reached a vote on the floor. Some of its supporters, I said, thought it would carry by three to one."

"Of course there was a great deal of talk about international law as to the right of Americans on the seas, and international precedents. When the conference closed it was very clear to all of us that the president stands firmly on his letter to Senator Stone."

"But there were mentioned and discussed certain rumors that Germany may postpone enforcement of the new admiralty order to sink all armed ships from March 1 until March 15 or until April 1. I think the chances are that Germany will postpone the threatened performance. This would give us more time for consideration of the situation."

"We assured the president that in the event of such a postponement all action in congress certainly would be postponed, and that meanwhile these various resolutions would remain exactly as they are."

Under the present parliamentary situation the speaker said that it would be some time before the warning resolution could be placed in a position where a vote could be forced in the house. There was no chance, he said, of the resolution being brought up today. It would be impossible to get unanimous consent to consider the measure, he pointed out.

A motion to discharge the foreign affairs committee from consideration of the resolution and thus force it on the floor would only be in order on the first and third Mondays of the month, the speaker said. There was no chance, he said, of obtaining its special consideration for the resolution.

"If the measure is reported by the foreign affairs committee," he said, "it would have to go to the foot of the calendar. That would mean we could not reach it before July or August, unless the rules committee would provide a special rule for its consideration. The rules committee is the only means by which early action on the resolution could be secured."

VERDUN FORTS UNDER HEAVY FIRE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, Feb. 25.—With the French lines battered by day and by night by the masses of the enemy hurled against them, the Germans have now begun a shattering bombardment of the outer defensive works of Verdun on the north.

Fort de Belleville, Fort de Douaumont and Fort de Marr are under the fire of the big German guns which are pounding away from their positions on an eight-mile front between Consenvoye and Ornes.

More than 400 guns are massed behind the German front and the cannonade of the French redoubts and forts is described as the sublimest spectacle of destruction and thunder since the world began.

French officers who saw the French bombardment of the German positions in Artois last spring and the French cannonade of the German positions in Champagne last autumn describe them as mere displays of fireworks compared with the tornado of steel which the German batteries are now launching.

So terrific is the fire of the big German guns and the reply of the French artillery that the throbbing thunder is plainly audible at Bar le Duc, nearly thirty miles away from the scene of the battle.

The foremost military critics in Paris express the belief that the battle of Verdun is the forerunner of a German offensive all along the west front in a supreme effort to smash through the allies lines and effect a decisive victory.

But the nation is more concerned with the outcome of the struggle around Verdun rather than the possibilities of the future.

It is estimated by the Matin that the German army of the crown prince has been reinforced to the strength of 350,000 men, who are being hurled against the French lines with systematic and utter disregard for human life.

The curtain of fire maintained by the French batteries has annihilated whole regiments and the ridges north of the Verdun fortress and the rolling hills along the Meuse are piled high with dead.

TORONTO MEN WANT TO MAKE CELLULOSE

Three men from Toronto, Canada, were in town Tuesday for the purpose of inspecting a local woodworking plant with the view of purchasing it for a factory to manufacture cellulose products. They represent a new company which will ship these products to some of the countries at war in Europe. They have been in other cities along the Hudson and Mohawk and were attracted to Kingston by the West Shore railroad, by which the products will be shipped to Canada and from there to the foreign countries.

Paying Taxes Early.

The tax receipts this year are heavier than last year at the same time and it was estimated this morning at the city treasurer's office that between five and six hundred more people have paid their taxes than during the same period last year. Thursday is the last day in which taxes can be paid without an additional two per cent being added.

Another New Haven Wreck.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Boston, Feb. 25.—A crowded passenger train the Plymouth division of the New Haven railroad was run into by an engine as the train was pulling into the South station shortly before 10 o'clock this morning and a number of passengers were cut and injured and shaken up.

Jail Term for Someone.

Someone is going to jail in Newburgh, according to District Attorney Hirschberg, who is making an inquiry into the alleged illegal influencing of votes in that city last election day. It is charged a saloon was open during prohibited hours.

Police Finds Things Quiet.

Today was another dull day in police court and not a case was brought to the attention of Recorder Lang. The rain storm of today, however, is expected to cause several to fall from the water wagon.

LAMBERT PICTURES SOLD FOR $592,110

Catholina Lambert of Paterson, N. J., who owns a handsome summer residence near West Shokan, has disposed of his famous art collection for a total of $592,110.

The collection was disposed of at auction and the closing session of the sale was held Thursday night in the ballroom of the Hotel Plaza, New York city. The night's total for ninety pictures was $195,990, and the total for the entire collection was $592,110.

There was lively bidding for many of the offerings at each of the three sessions of the sale, and the pictures were largely bought by art galleries of New York and other cities.

The record price of the sale was $25,500, which was paid Thursday night for Louis' "Madonna Enthroned," which at the auction stand was declared to be the finest sacred picture ever offered at public sale in this country. The picture was bought by the Brooklyn Institute Museum.

"The Holy Family," by Andrea del Sarto, was sold to W. W. Seaman, agent, for $27,000, and Sandro Botticelli's "Madonna and Child," was sold to Otto Bernet, agent, for $22,600. Forty-six of the ninety pictures sold Thursday night brought more than $1,000 each.

RAIN STOPS ICE HARVESTING

The heavy rain storm this morning practically put a stop to the work of harvesting ice today on the river and the only place in this vicinity where the men continued at work was at Kingston Point. According to loemen the rain will not damage the ice to any great extent unless the weather turns off warmer. The most waste to the ice might occur if the rain fall is heavy and causes a freshet which will wear away the ice underneath.

The weather man on Thursday promised snow and warmer weather. He made a mistake as to the snow, as the weather turned off warmer than expected and rain fell instead throughout the night and today. Owing to the fact that but few gutters have been cleaned out in the city the rain has made walking extremely disagreeable as pools of water have formed on the sidewalks. Ice walks covered with water also made it dangerous walking for unwary pedestrians.

Runaway on Fair Street.

A horse belonging to Mr. Abrams, who lives at the Eagle Hotel, and driven by Mr. Boardway, manager of the Eagle, caused considerable excitement on Fair street shortly before 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The horse, attached to a sleigh, was being driven down Fair street near River's clear store when the runner became caught in the trolley track and the sleigh tipped over, throwing out the occupant. The horse dashed down the street in the direction of Rosendale and was caught after running some distance along the Boulevard. The sleigh was badly damaged and on Fair street several small children playing in the street narrowly escaped being run over.

So far he has been able to accomplish the feats without sustaining any serious injury.

ships she would be within her right under international law.

Also that you would feel disposed to allow armed vessels to be cleared from our ports. Also that you are not favorably disposed to the idea of this government taking any definite steps toward preventing American citizens from embarking upon armed merchant vessels. Furthermore, that you would consider it your duty if a German warship should fire upon an armed merchant vessel of the enemy upon which American citizens were passengers to hold Germany to strict account.

Numerous members of the senate and the house have called to discuss this subject with me. I have felt that the members of the two houses who are to deal with this grave question are entitled to know as I understand it to be. I think I should say to you that the members of both houses feel deeply concerned and disturbed by what they read and hear. I have heard of some talk to the effect that some are saying that after all it may be possible that the program of preparedness, so called, has some relation to just a situation as we are now called upon to meet.

I have counseled all who have talked with me to keep cool; that this whole business is still the subject of diplomacy, and that you are striving to the utmost to bring about some peaceable adjustment, and that in the meantime congress should be careful not to "ball up" a diplomatic situation by any kind of hasty and ill-considered action. However, the situation in congress is such as to excite a sense of deep concern in the minds of careful and thoughtful men.

I have felt that it is due to you to say this much. I think you understand my personal attitude with respect to this subject. As much and deeply as I would hate to radically disagree with you, I find it difficult from my sense of duty and responsibility to consent to plunge this nation into the vortex of this "world war" because of the unreasonable obstinacy of any of the powers upon the one hand, or, on the other hand, of foolishness, amounting to a sort of moral treason against the Republic, of our people recklessly risking their lives on armed belligerent ships. I cannot escape the conviction that such would be so monstrous as to be indefensible.

I want to be with you, and to stand by you, and I mean to do so to the last limit; and I want to talk with you and Secretary Lansing with the utmost frankness—to confer with you and have your judgment and counsel—and I want to be kept advised as to the course of events, as it seems to me I am entitled to be. In the meantime I am striving to prevent anything being done by any senator or member calculated to embarrass your diplomatic negotiations. Up to the last you should be left free to act diplomatically as you think for the best to settle the questions involved. I need hardly say that my wish is to help, not to hinder you.

With the highest regard and most sympathetic consideration, I have the honor, Mr. President, to be, Very sincerely yours,
W. J. STONE.

The President.

DAY'S WAR NEWS AT A GLANCE

Washington—President Wilson today called upon Congress leaders to end all agitation for interference by Congress in international situation. Insisted honor United States at stake and could be no back down from position taken that rules of international law shall be observed in submarine campaign.

Berlin—Six more positions fortified by French for defense of Verdun captured by Germans. Trench battle front now only 4½ miles north of Verdun. Total prisoners captured ten thousand.

Paris—French troops evacuated Beaumont. Establishing lines behind that village. Reported fighting less violent.

Rome—Three Austrian submarines been sunk in Adriatic last two months.

Petrograd—Russians won another great victory over Turks in Persian territory. Ottoman forces being in full retreat toward Kermanshah with Russians in pursuit.

Vienna—Austro-Hungarians placed Durazzo, Albania, under siege. Italians defeated in Albania.

Constantinople—British defeated in fighting on Irak front, Mesopotamia.

WILSON DEMANDS A FREE HAND

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 25.—President Wilson today called upon Speaker Champ Clark, Majority Leader Claude Kitchin and Representative Henry D. Flood, chairman of the house foreign affairs committee, to end all agitation for interference by congress in the international situation. For nearly an hour the entire situation was canvassed. The president stood squarely on his letter to Senator Stone, made public last night. He insisted that the honor of the United States was at stake and that there could be no backing down from the position taken that the rules of international law shall be observed by the central European powers in conducting their submarine campaign.

The house Democratic leaders told the president they would do what they could to prevent any interference by congress until all diplomatic measures had been exhausted. They went immediately from the White House to the capitol to take the matter up with members generally.

After he had returned to the capitol, Speaker Clark said: "I think that the chances are that Germany will postpone this threatened performance until April 1, 15 or perhaps until April 1. There are rumors to that effect."

The speaker said that if Germany did postpone her threatened action the excitement in the house would automatically postpone itself.

The speaker was designated to do the talking for the house leaders. He declared President Wilson had been told fully that in the present temper of the house a resolution warning Americans off belligerent ships would pass the house, two to one. The speaker said:

"The president's letter to Senator Stone, and Senator Stone's letter to the president set forth the sum and substance of the conference outside of an explanation made as to the temper of the house regarding the diplomatic situation with Germany and some arguments on both sides."

"We told the president how the house felt, in our judgment. I told him that this warning resolution would carry two to one if it ever reached a vote on the floor. Some of its supporters, I said, thought it would carry by three to one."

"Of course there was a great deal of talk about international law as to the right of Americans on the seas, and international precedents. When the conference closed it was very clear to all of us that the president stands firmly on his letter to Senator Stone."

"But there were mentioned and discussed certain rumors that Germany may postpone enforcement of the new admiralty order to sink all armed ships from March 1 until March 15 or until April 1. I think the chances are that Germany will postpone the threatened performance. This would give us more time for consideration of the situation."

"We assured the president that in the event of such a postponement all action in congress certainly would be postponed, and that meanwhile these various resolutions would remain exactly as they are."

Under the present parliamentary situation the speaker said that it would be some time before the warning resolution could be placed in a position where a vote could be forced in the house. There was no chance, he said, of the resolution being brought up today. It would be impossible to get unanimous consent to consider the measure, he pointed out.

A motion to discharge the foreign affairs committee from consideration of the resolution and thus force it on the floor would only be in order on the first and third Mondays of the month, the speaker said. There was no means, he said, of obtaining special consideration for the resolution.

"If the measure is reported by the foreign affairs committee," he said, "it would have to go to the foot of the calendar. That would mean we could not reach it before July or August, unless the rules committee would provide a special rule for its consideration. The rules committee is the only means by which early action on the resolution could be secured."

Paying Taxes Early.
The tax receipts this year are heavier than last year at the same time and it was estimated this morning at the city treasurer's office that between five and six hundred more people have paid their taxes than during the same period last year. Thursday is the last day in which taxes can be paid without an additional two per cent being added.

Another New Haven Wreck.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Boston, Feb. 25.—A crowded passenger train from the Plymouth division of the New Haven railroad was run into by an engine as the train was pulling into the South station shortly before 10 o'clock this morning and a number of passengers were cut and injured and shaken up.

Jail Term for Someone.
Someone is going to jail in Newburgh, according to District Attorney Hirschberg, who is making an inquiry into the alleged illegal influence of votes in that city last election day. It is charged a saloon was open during prohibited hours.

Police Find Things Quiet.
Today was another dull day in police court and not a case was brought to the attention of Recorder J. J. The rain storm of today, however, is expected to cause severe ice to fall from the water wagon.

Poem as Penalty for Pupils.
For failing to do holiday without permission on Washington's birthday, thirty students of the Walden high school have been sentenced to learn a poem which they are to recite before the board of education.

CHILDREN'S DISEASES.
Number of Cases and Death Rate Show Increase.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Feb. 25.—Warning to parents throughout the upstate counties that they must carefully guard their children from exposure to diphtheria, measles and whooping cough is issued by the state department of health today. The warning is coupled with an announcement that there was a material increase in cases and deaths from the three diseases during January.

The figures given out by the department shows that in January, outside of New York city, there were 59 more cases and 37 more deaths from diphtheria than in January, 1915. There were 3,899 more cases of measles with 41 more deaths and the increase in cases of whooping cough was 237 and in deaths 15.

PROSPERITY WEEK

WHILE in America we see the bright dawn of Prosperity pushing up above a sombre horizon, in Europe the sun shines through grimy panes, not with a golden radiance, but rosy red—the blood of heroes and martyrs penetrates in a ruby flood the brown earth, to which hundreds of thousands of human beings have been returned.

Under the Ever Glorious Stars and Stripes a hundred million of men, women and children greet each other with the message of returning Prosperity. Peace, Full and Plenty fill the length and breadth of the land. Fine brews like our high-grade

CATSKILL EVENING LINE DISPOSED OF

Hudson River Day Line Officers Now in Charge—W. J. Hughes Retires. After 32 Years of Service.

The first official announcement that the Catskill Evening Line has been sold to the Hudson River Day Line was made Thursday. There have been rumors of an impending change in the management of the company ever since the Messrs. Olcott of the Day Line were elected as directors of the Catskill Evening Line. The Day Line officials are now in active control of the Catskill Evening Line and the offices of the latter company, which have heretofore been located in Catskill, will be moved to New York city.

With the change comes the announcement of the retirement of W. J. Hughes, for thirty-two years secretary and treasurer of the Catskill Evening Line. Mr. Hughes announced his resignation Thursday. He will devote his entire time to his coal business here in Catskill in the future. W. Y. Hawley has been elected secretary of the company and A. V. S. Olcott, a son of E. E. Olcott, has been elected treasurer. Mr. Hughes was with the Catskill Evening Line for about forty years and became secretary and treasurer on the death of William Denahue. He has been in a large measure responsible for the splendid success which has been attained by the line. His good business judgment, careful management of the company's finances and his initiative have done much for the line. It is understood that the Morse interests attempted some time ago to buy the Catskill Evening Line. Keen competition between the Day Line and the Hudson Navigation Company, the Morse line, may be expected.—Catskill Mail.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1363—A Unique and Stylish Design —Ladies' Costume, With Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths, With or Without Over Back, With Two Styles of Collar and Waist Fronts. This simple but attractive model offers several style variations. It may be made with a flaring or a low rolled collar, a sleeve in wrist or short length. The fronts may be shaped in points or in straight outline, and closed at the side, or finished with a revers. The skirt is cut circular and with four gores. For linen, pique, corduroy, poplin, serge, singham, chambray, taffeta, percale or lawn this style is very suitable. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6 yards of 44 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt measures about 3 yards at the foot.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths; in feelings, not in figures on a dial. We should count time by heart-throbs. He most lives Who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

For those who need to count the pennies a most appetizing and substantial meat dish may be made of hamburger steak. Buy a pound of meat, having it half chopped fresh pork and half beef; add a cupful of any cooked cereal, like cream of wheat, oatmeal or bread crumbs, a little milk, salt and pepper to season, with a dash of nutmeg and a pinch of cloves.

Roll into a long loaf, place in the oven and bake with butter and water while baking. This little roast will serve five people abundantly and is most economical as well as appetizing. One may add a little onion juice, a clove or garlic or other seasonings like kitchen bouquet to the basting liquor.

Rub tough mutton chops with lemon or a little vinegar, let them stand two hours in a cold place, then cook, and you will find the fiber much more tender.

Cheese Balls to Serve With Salad.—Mix one-half cupful each of grated American cheese, Roquefort, and bread crumbs together, add a half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and one egg. Mix well and roll into small balls the size of a hickory nut, dip in beaten egg, then in crumbs, then fry in deep fat until brown. Serve fresh with a lettuce salad. A little cayenne pepper may be added for seasoning if liked.

Spaghetti With Tomato Sauce.—Break a fourth of a pound of spaghetti into inch pieces, drop into salted, boiling water in which there is a small onion. Cook on the back of the stove for an hour; remove the onion and sprinkle with grated cheese after it has been well drained, and serve with the following sauce: To a half can of tomato add a little parsley, a stalk of celery, three or four cloves, two bay leaves, salt, red pepper, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a tablespoonful of onion juice. Cook for half an hour, then strain. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, then add the same amount of flour; when smooth add the tomato liquid and cook until smooth and thick.

Painless Extractions

During the year 1915 the Cady Dental Offices in Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Newburgh and Middletown performed over ten thousand extractions. These operations were painless. Local Anaesthetics were used in the majority of cases but nitrous-oxide gas in a few. This wonderful record should make a deep impression on those who have teeth which require extraction and desire to have the operation done painlessly.

CHURCH FOLK HEAR OF CAUSES OF POVERTY

The Woman's Society of the Round Presbyterian Church has made an acceptable contribution to the Bureau of Social Service in the shape of sheets, pillow cases and bedding, which were made by the members of the society. These articles have been distributed by the Bureau of Social Service to families where they were most needed, and additional contributions of a similar nature can be used by the bureau to good advantage.

At the mid-week prayer meeting service of the church, Mrs. Laura MacMillan, secretary of the bureau, gave a short talk on the conditions found by the bureau in carrying on its work in Kingston, and the causes of poverty.

The causes of poverty were classified by Mrs. MacMillan as follows: Death of the male member of the family; deserted wives; shiftless husbands; unemployment; sickness; handicap caused by illness, accident or deformity; old age; intemperance. Frequently the church finds several of the causes enumerated, contributing to poverty of the family, but in most cases needing attention one of the causes is found to exist, combined with sickness.

Without mentioning names or localities, brief descriptions were given of some of the families to whom the supplies contributed by the women of the church were furnished by the bureau, and the comfort they had brought to the members of such families.

The chapel of the church was well filled, and the work of the bureau was more thoroughly understood and appreciated than ever before.

Next week the membership committee and board of directors of the Bureau of Social Service will hold a meeting for the purpose of perfecting plans for conducting a membership campaign in the near future.

FIGHTING SERBIAN MAID NOW SERGEANT.

This seventeen-year-old girl was promoted from the rank of private in the Serbian army, for heroic conduct in action. She served two years in the comitajes, under Major Tankosich, named by Austria as responsible for the assassination of the Archduke Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne.

An Expert C. E. Class.

An "Expert Christian Endeavor Class" to be conducted by State Secretary Harold A. Waite of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union will have its first session on Wednesday evening, March 1, in the Y. M. C. A. parlors. This class will be held under the auspices of the Kingston Local Union of Christian Endeavor, of which W. W. Brady, Jr., is president. All young people whether they are Christian Endeavorers or not who desire to learn more about the Bible and how to use in church work are invited to join this class. Mr. Waite is well known among the young people of Kingston and vicinity and is an active Endeavor worker. He has spoken here several times under the auspices of the Kingston Local Union. A small fee which covers the cost of the text book to be used will be charged those uniting with the class. This class affords an exceptional opportunity for the young people of this city.

Dad's Portion.

"I notice an eastern paper runs an attractive mothers' department headed 'Frocks and Frills.'"

"Some of these papers," growled the old man, "ought to run a fathers' department headed 'Shocks and Bills.'"

—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Where Her Thoughts Were.

Daughter—To tell the truth, pa, I didn't think much of the close of the sermon. Father—Thought more of the clothes of the congregation, eh?

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Sarah C. Lounsbury of Kyerike has been admitted to probate in the surrogate's court. To her granddaughter, Catherine Lounsbury Winfield, the testatrix bequeaths the sum of $1; to her sons, George Lounsbury and Thomas D. Lounsbury, she bequeaths $600 each and the balance of the estate she gives equally to her daughters, Elizabeth Lounsbury and Cornelia Lounsbury. Thomas D. Lounsbury and Cornelia Lounsbury are appointed executors. The will was executed September 24, 1895, and witnessed by Simon Hoar and Jeremiah Youngs, both of Allgerville. The value of the estate is $4,100 personal property. Virgil B. Van Wageningen appeared for the executors.

The will of Alice Hillis of this city was admitted to probate. The testatrix gives her estate to her husband, Thomas Hillis, whom she appoints executor. The will was executed March 19, 1915, and witnessed by Robert G. Groves and Eliza J. Purvis. The value of the estate is $500 real estate. Robert G. Groves appeared for the executor.

A hearing was had in the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of George Westinghouse, Jr., as administrator of the estate of his mother, Mrs. Marguerite E. W. Westinghouse of Pittsburgh, Pa. Mrs. Westinghouse left property in the state of New York valued at $23,900. The administrator has paid her New York creditors the sum of $8,962.39, has paid the taxable transfer tax amounting to $64, and the balance he has paid to himself, he being the only next of kin. Virgil B. Van Wageningen appeared for the administrator and Daniel B. Deyo for the National Surety Company.

The hearing in the estate of James Cruickshank, of the town of Shandaken was adjourned to March 9. Daniel B. Deyo appeared for interested parties.

SHOKAN.

Shokan, Feb. 24.—On Friday evening, March 3, the young people of Mt. Tremper Church will give a play entitled, "Farm Folks," in Davis's Hall at Ashokan, under the auspices of the Community Club of Olive. Undoubtedly there will be a large number of our people out to see this show, which has been presented twice in Mt. Tremper Hall. Tickets are now on sale by the members of the club.

Saturday's heavy wind storm caused the mountain roads to drift badly. Saturday was some day in these parts.

The revival services, which have been held in the church the past two weeks, came to a close Sunday evening. These meetings were very much enjoyed by our folks.

James Giles is preparing to move to the Homer Markle place on Dibble avenue.

Marion Longyear of Kingston spent the holiday with her grandparents here.

Invitations are out for a party and entertainment to be given by the Boy's Club of the Sunday school in Winchell's Hall on March 10.

February 28, 1857, the Democratic caucus was held at W. D. Beadle's in the evening and on the following Tuesday the entire ticket with the exception of commissioner of highways was elected, including N. W. Watson supervisor. On Sunday, February 24, 1850, Asplu Lane and Catherine Barringer were married, and the following Saturday William C. Markle and Catherine Wood were made man and wife.

On Sunday, February 20, 1853, the Rev. David Abbey preached in the Dutch Church. Tuesday, March 1, 1853, Hiram Humphrey, the Whig candidate for supervisor of Olive, was elected by 68 majority. Martin Schutt was elected justice on the same ticket. Tuesday, March 6, 1855, the "Know Nothing" town ticket was elected over the combined Whig and Democratic forces.

Dan Sampson is agent for a mantle lamp that we would like to own if we had the price.

Alec Hamilton and Merritt Persons have recovered after having been confined to the house with the quinsy.

The Sunday school scholars expect to go on a sleigh ride to the Corner Saturday next. They are also said to be planning an entertainment for the middle of March. The Corner Saturday next. They seem to be some real live wires on the social committee of this school.

George Dibble is more popular than ever with the fair sex since he started taking the girls to the post office with his light blue sleighs.

A delightful evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles MacDonough Tuesday evening by those who attended the surprise cluding Washington's Birthday, with Rev. and Mrs. Frank H. Allen. Mrs. Leander Minard who was operated on for appendicitis at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, is reported as much better.

Hearing is believing!

THAT is the one proof—the final test of the qualities of a musical instrument. And measured by that test, the Columbia Grafonola superbly proves its right to the title of "The One Incomparable Instrument of Music."

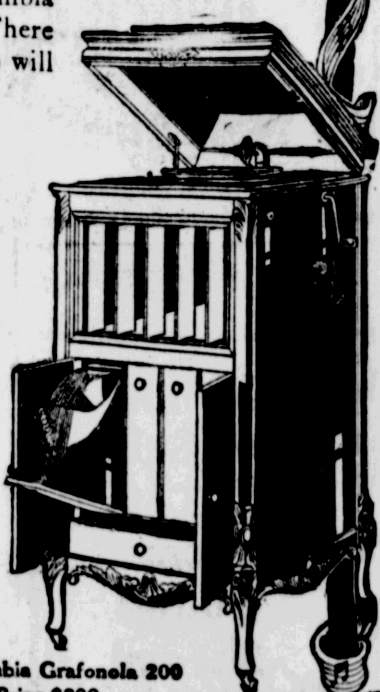

TO HEAR it is to feel the thrill of absolute reality. Its tone is so pure, crystal-clear, and flawlessly true to life that it well-nigh makes the hearer forget the presence of an instrument.

TO HEAR it play a delicate, airy bit of chamber-music, then a tremendous orchestral symphony, is to gain a new conception of its marvelous range and power. No detail or shading of a theme is lost, and the peculiar tones of all instruments are returned with the musical values unaltered.

TO HEAR it with critical appreciation of its musical possibilities is truly to feel convinced that art and science could hardly go further in the reproduction of musical sound.

"Hearing is Believing." Put the Columbia Grafonola to the final test today. There is a Columbia dealer near you who will gladly arrange a demonstration.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Feb. 24.—Order of the Eastern Star held their regular meeting Monday evening. After the work they had a Colonial party and a box lunch. On account of the severe weather there was a small attendance, only a few being dressed in ye old time costumes. There was considerable sport when the contest for men took place to trim hats. Byron Clearwater walked off with the first prize. There will be no need of women going to New York or Poughkeepsie for their hats this spring. They all had a lot of sport out of it. With the regular work the marshal was installed and a box luncheon was enjoyed and those present spent a pleasant evening and seemed to be counted in the O. E. S.

Mrs. Solomon G. Carpenter of Vineyard avenue entertained the P. E. O. Society at her home on Thursday. The program was on the "Famous Women in History."

Prayer meeting was held on Tuesday evening at the home of George Coutant, North Road, and was well attended despite the very cold weather.

Several from this place were anxious to hear the lecture last Sunday at Cohen's Theater, Poughkeepsie, and they were well pleased. The subject was "Why God Made Women," and many were anxious to know and hear this orator, and he gave good questions and answers and told the truth in many of his sayings.

Peter Schantz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schantz, was in New Paltz recently visiting school friends.

Hasbrouck Terwilliger of Clinton, date road, was a caller on New Paltz people last week.

Frank Simpson was in New Paltz this week. He is a frequent visitor there.

Arthur Merritt has been spending a few days in the metropolis taking in the sights.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Pratt have relatives visiting them from West Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Miller of Poughkeepsie were in this place on Wednesday attending the funeral of the late Andrew Upright, an uncle of Mrs. Miller.

Mrs. Winans of Poughkeepsie and Miss Mena and Caroline Gillman of the same place attended the funeral services of the late Andrew Upright Wednesday.

Edgar Davis was a week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Merritt. He is attending Syracuse University.

Mrs. Sarah Krom of Jersey City has spent several days with her sister, Mrs. Joseph Schantz, and while in town called on other relatives and friends.

Friday afternoon Mrs. G. Norrie of suffrage fame was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lent. She is leader of the 10th district, we were informed.

Miss Alice Carey will leave here to make her home in the future in Buffalo with her sister, Mrs. Fred Kaiser. These people were here for the funeral of James Carey, the father of Mrs. Kaiser.

There will be a dance held in J. W. Foster's hall Saturday evening, February 26. Music by an orchestra from Poughkeepsie.

The family of William Huson will move from here March 1. They are going to Putnam county and Mr. and Mrs. Zophar Aldrich will move to the same place. People of this place regret their departure.

Go to M. E. Church on March 3 and hear the lecture by Dr. MacRossie. Subject, "The Great Cities of the World."

Few men from here went to Newburgh recently and were initiated as members of Highland Chapter, Royal Arch Masons. They speak highly of the work and spent a delightful evening with their brothers.

Music Study Club held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon; Miss Carol Schofield was the hostess at the Presbyterian manse and her brother, the Rev. G. H. Schofield, acted as host. An interesting program was given and at the conclusion refreshments were served.

A supper will be held in the M. E. Church parlor Friday evening, March 10, under the auspices of Auxiliary Club and a good time for all who attend. Also first class supper. You get your money's worth every time you go there.

Auxiliary Club of M. E. Church will hold their regular meeting on March 3 at "Glen View," the home of the president. They expect a large delegation as there is a great deal of business to come up before the members.

Mrs. Charles DuBois has been suffering for a few days from a severe cold.

A jolly lot of people gave a surprise party to Eddie Townsend last Friday night. They amused themselves with games of various sorts and then a box luncheon was enjoyed. All declared they spent a delightful evening.

We think there must be a great attraction at Walden as Livingston Rhoades visits there quite often.

OUR YOUNG WOMEN

are so often subject to headache—are languid, pale and nervous—because their blood is thin or insufficient. They are not really sick and hesitate to complain, but they lack that ambition and vivacity which is their birthright. They do not need drugs—but do need the tonic and nourishment in Scott's Emulsion that makes richer blood, fills hollow cheeks, suppresses nervousness and establishes strength. Nourishment alone makes blood and Scott's Emulsion is the essence of concentrated nourishment, free from wines, alcohols or opiates. If mother or daughter is frail, pale or nervous, give her Scott's for one month and see the betterment. It has a wholesome, "nutty" flavor. Avoid substitutes. At any drug store.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 15-24 to several of her school friends. They went out to Clintondale and had a grand time, and all had refreshments after the ride at the Schantz home.

Our enterprising storekeeper, Herbert Seaman, has purchased a Ford car from Louis Smith.

Mrs. Mary E. Townsend was a visitor in Poughkeepsie last Thursday.

We are informed that J. Melins is going to erect a new house for himself and family on his newly acquired property in this place. Highland is becoming a very fine residential place.

One of our florists has taken a partner in with him, a Mrs. Eunice Adams of New Paltz. They were married last Saturday. All wish to extend congratulations and hope their path through life may be bordered with roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Miller of Poughkeepsie were guests last Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Terpening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lent entertained guests from Poughkeepsie this week.

Miss Mollie Carey will we hear resume her work at the store of Mr. Spitz in Poughkeepsie and make her home in that city for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hopper, of Vineyard avenue have had as their guest this week, Mrs. Harry Schoonmaker of Brooklyn.

On Wednesday evening, March 1, there will be given in the D. of A. rooms an entertainment, under direction of Mrs. A. W. Lent. This takes the form of a "Mother Goose" affair and also a short musical part first which will be enjoyed we know and then we were informed they will have ice cream and cake on sale so the D. of A. may enrich their treasury at this time.

The patriotic exercises and presentation of flag to the high school by the Jr., O. U. A. M. took place on Tuesday evening at the school building and was very interesting. They had a good program, consisting of recitations, orchestra music, and vocal selections by pupils. The flag was presented by O. C. Stubbs of Poughkeepsie who is past chief counselor of the Jr., O. U. A. M., and the response by Principal E. A. Marsh, both reminded us of the birthday of the "Father of His Country," and may we be impressed that the stars under which we were born, beam with bright promises and kindle lofty hopes and the great principle "that all men were created equal" is the only broad foundation of true greatness and if all take courage and begin at the bottom round of the ladder, it will be positive you will reach the top, and may the rich blessings of a kind Providence abide with the instructors and pupils of Highland High School.

Mrs. Daniel Kurtz spent Thursday out of town.

Mrs. Winans of Poughkeepsie was a guest of her mother, Mrs. George Main last Thursday on Washington avenue.

Mrs. D. T. Aldrich, mother of Isaac Aldrich passed away at his home on Milton avenue Thursday morning last. She has been sick for a long time. She lived to be 92 years and a few months old. Funeral services were held at the home of her son Friday afternoon, Feb. 18, at 3 o'clock, and were largely attended by relatives and friends, Rev. J. C. Coddington, pastor of the M. E. Church here, officiated. His sermon will long be remembered. He spoke most beautifully of the life of the deceased and it was shown, she set her affections on things above with which there is no variableness or shadow of turning. This mother was wise for in her young days she laid up her treasures in heaven. Many floral emblems were in evidence. The interment was in Sullivan county. Funeral director, W. E. Wilcox.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon for the late Andrew Upright, who died on Monday afternoon. He had been a resident of this place for 30 years, and was well-known. The Rev. J. C. Coddington, pastor of the First M. E. Church, officiated, and gave a fine sermon. The services were largely attended, and a number of members of Odd Fellows' Lodge, from New Paltz, also some from the Knights of Pythias, of Poughkeepsie. Mr. Upright was a member of these orders. The floral emblems from relatives and friends, also from lodges, were numerous and beautiful, and of many designs, showing the high esteem in which he was held. He will be greatly missed in the home and in the community. We tender our deep sympathy to the bereaved widow and son and to the families of dear ones, who have been called to mourn the loss of one they loved. The interment was in Highland cemetery, under direction of W. E. Wilcox.

C. Jansen and family of Walkkill were in town Wednesday attending the funeral of the late Andrew Upright.

Mrs. Benjamin Johnston, Sr., has returned to her home here, after spending quite some time in Albany with her daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson.

Mrs. Clarence Leroy, who has been spending several weeks with her people in the Metropolis, has been quite ill. At present she is recovering and expects to arrive here soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller had visitors last week from out of town.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Decker entertained guests from Poughkeepsie this week.

KINGSTON, N. Y., FEB. 25, 1916.

The correspondence between President Wilson and Chairman Stone of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee defines exactly the issue which has split the National Administration into two opposing camps. Senator Stone writes of what he calls the "foolhardiness amounting to a sort of moral treason against the republic of our own people recklessly risking their lives on armed belligerent ships." He seems to think that our citizens take passage on such ships, not because they have pressing business abroad, but just to be devilish. President Wilson, on the other hand, declares that Americans are entitled under international law to make such trips, and that he "cannot consent to any abridgement of the rights of American citizens in any respect." He declares that to do so would be on the part of America "conceding her own impotence as a nation and making virtual surrender of her independent position among the nations of the world." Mr. Stone wants peace anyway. Mr. Wilson wants it "at any cost but the loss of honor." As for us, we are with the Wilson Democrats, but whatever any man may think regarding the issue under discussion, he must admit that it is a disgrace and scandal that a quarrel like this should arise in the midst of delicate diplomatic negotiations. Under these circumstances, it is cheering to read in one of the despatches that "the Republican leaders in the Senate have come to the support of the President to the extent of taking a stand in favor of refraining from debate while negotiations are in progress." Apparently, it is to the Republican minority in Congress that the nation must look to sustain its dignity.

The advocates of prohibition have been so active in recent years that hosts of sensible men who have views on the subject are afraid to express them, since in certain large circles it is equivalent to avowing one's self an infidel and traitor. Under such circumstances it is refreshing to read that so eminent a prelate as James Cardinal Gibbons, has the courage to utter a few wholesome truths. He publicly denounces the State-wide prohibition bill pending in the General Assembly of Maryland. As he says, he is "heartily in favor of temperance," and it has been his practice, when confirming a class of boys, to exact from them a pledge not to touch intoxicants until they become of age. Furthermore, he is "a firm believer in the principle of local option," but when it is proposed to make a large city like Baltimore dry he is constrained to say:

"Such a law would interfere with personal liberty and rights and create hypocrisy in the people. The story of the world demonstrates that people always have and always will indulge in intoxicating liquors. Further, I am opposed to such a law because it would deprive the State of a large revenue without accomplishing results, and that, too, at a time when both the city and State are very much in need of the revenue produced."

There is no honest answer to this argument. Men cannot be forced by statute to change their customs, and there should be no attempt to do so in a free country. Liberty for the individual is the principal thing which makes our Government superior to others, and it would be suicidal to destroy it because a few people abuse it.

A specimen of the crazy legislation which is proposed every year is contained in a bill introduced at Albany by Assemblyman Coffey, which provides that "no railroad company which fails or refuses to furnish seats for all passengers engaging transportation on any of its trains shall charge or collect any fare from any person for whom such company fails to provide a seat," and makes it a misdemeanor for any agent of the company to make such collection. Of course, the measure will not pass, since the legislators are not mostly fools, but we can imagine the conditions which would be created if it did. In the case of an unexpected crowd, the railroad would receive only as many passengers as it could seat, and many citizens would be greatly inconvenienced. If an association desired to make a short trip anywhere it could keep the date a secret and then travel for half fare by dividing expenses between the standers and sitters, if the railroad did not adopt a policy, of exclusion. If the principle is right for steam railroads it is also right for trolley cars and jitneys. Mr. Coffey's measure seems to be inadequate to accomplish his desires. Furthermore, while it is disagreeable to stand up in a car, it is even worse to have a seat with some passenger hanging over you and bumping you every few feet. The sitters ought to ride free, too, in such cases. It would be still better to make the railroads carry everybody free, providing each individual with a special car. Reformers should be thorough. Halfway measures are worse than none.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

He—"Mr. Juggles is very much opposed to the single tax." She—"Of course he is. Didn't you know he is a confirmed bachelor?"—Baltimore American.

"Wasn't that a drinking song Miss Schreecher just rendered?" "Why, no. What makes you ask that?" "There were so many high bawls in it."—Boston Transcript.

Captain—"What's he charged with, Casey?" Officer—"I don't know the regular name for it, captain; but I caught him a-firin' in the park." Captain—"Ah, that's impersonatin' an officer."—Judge.

"You say this is the last word in automobile construction?" "Absolutely, sir." "But I purchase it can you give me a guarantee that my chauffeur will be satisfied with it?"—Detroit Free Press.

"I understood that Crimmon Gulch was to be a dry town." "Yes," replied Three Finger Sam, "we're all prohibitionists now." "And you are, no doubt, healthier than before." "I shouldn't be surprised."—Columbia.

Where the Plans Failed.
A white man walking along a road when an old colored man was while-washing a fence noticed that the brush he was using contained very few bristles.
"Look here, Rastus," exclaimed the man pausing and looking at the operation, "why don't you get a brush with more bristles in it?"
"What fo, Mistah Smith, what fo?" returned Rastus, glancing from the fence to his questioner.
"What fo?" expressively replied Mr. Smith. "Why, if you had a brush with more bristles in it you could do twice as much work."
"Dat's all right, Mistah Smith," said Rastus negatively shaking his head, "but I ain't got twice as much work to do."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

You Never Can Tell.
Simoon Ford, the humorist, said at a banquet in New York—a banquet that happened to coincide in its occurrence with the big landslide in the Panama canal.

"General Goethals is a great engineer and a great man, and I'd like to ask him a conundrum."
"General," I'd like to ask him, "tell me whether the canal is in Panama, or Panama is in the canal."—New York Telegraph.

An Anti-Climax.

Judge Moses Wright, the good, tough champion of Georgia, said in Rome:

"After the roads of the old world, the new world's roads are a terrible anti-climax. In our elevators and typewriters and telephones we are far in advance of the old world, but to pass from their roads to ours is to be let down like the new boarder."

"How's the grub here?" a new boarder asked genially, rubbing his hands at a dinner table of a Rome boarding house.

"Well, friend, we have chicken every morning," an old boarder grinned.

"Chicken every morning!" The new boarder positively beamed.

"Chicken every morning! And how's it served?"

"In the shell," grunted the old boarder. —New York World.

Suitably Expressed.
As the subject for the weekly essay the schoolmaster asked his pupils to say what they could do if they had five million dollars.
At once all heads were bent, save one, and pens scratched busily. The one exception was little Willie. He calmly sat doing nothing, twiddling his fingers and watching the flies on the ceiling.

"How's this, Willie?" asked the master. "Is this your essay? Why, all the other have written at least two sheets, while you do nothing."

"Well," replied Willie, "that's what I would do if I were a millionaire."—Philadelphia Record.

PROCLAMATION.

The People of the State of New York
by the grace of God free and independent:
To the sheriff of the county of Ulster,
Greeting: We command you that you summon to be and appear at a term of the supreme court of the state of New York, to be held by a justice of the supreme court, at the said court, in Kingston, in and for the county of Ulster, on the 1st Monday of March, 1916, the several persons who shall have been directed to serve as grand and petit jurors at the said court, and we further command you to bring before the said court all persons then being in the jail of the said court of Ulster, together with all the process and proceedings any way concerning them; in your hands. And we further command you to make proclamation in the manner prescribed by law, notifying all persons bound to appear at the said court, by recognition, or otherwise, to appear at the said court, and requiring all justices of the peace, coroners and other officers who have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at the said court, or who have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any prisoner or witness, to return to the said court, on the first day of its sitting, all have then and there this precept, and Witness, our hand, at Albany, this 24th day of February, 1916.

F. G. TRAYER,

District Attorney.

In pursuance to the above precept I hereby make proclamation that a term of the supreme court of the state of New York and jail delivery, will be held at the court house in Kingston, in and for the County of Ulster, on the 1st Monday of March next, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, this day, and all persons who will precede against persons confined in the jail of said county are required to be in and there present, to process as may be and all persons bound to appear at the said court, by recognition or otherwise, are required to appear thereat; and all justices of the peace, coroners or other officers who may have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at the said court, or who may have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any prisoner or witness, are required to return such recognizance, together with all process and proceedings, to the said court, on the first day of its sitting, and to be then and there present, and to be then and there present with their rolls and records, and to be then and there present with these clerk which to their offices pertain.

P.O.S.A. TO RECEIVE G. A. R. VETERANS

The Civil War Veterans in this vicinity, although they are now few in number, will be taken into the membership of Washington Camp, No. 2, Patriotic Order Sons of America, next Wednesday night at Mechanics Hall on Henry street, at a public meeting. At the recent reunion of the veterans, applications for honorary membership in the order were signed by all the old warriors and those who were not present at the meeting who wish to join the Sons as honorary members are welcome to membership in the order. The local camp has the honor of being the first one to think of this happy plan to brighten the last days of the men who fought for our nation in days gone by.

Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., will preside at the meeting and several good speakers have been engaged to deliver addresses. One of the speakers will be H. Willard Griffiths, vice president of the state of New York and corporation counsel of Hempstead, L. I., who will give the history of the order commencing with the period before the Civil War. He will tell of the number of orders in both the north and south before the struggle and of their decrease in number after the strife between the two sections.

It is expected that a large attendance of the veterans, their families, and friends will be present to witness the initiation. The camp will meet at 7 while the doors will be open to the public at 7:45 o'clock. Vocal and instrumental music will be rendered and light refreshments will be served.

THEY SAY.

If anyone has a left hind foot a rabbit that he is not using he is invited to contribute the same to Billy Scott, the colored night janitor at the city hall. Billy believes that the hind foot is the best preventative from being interviewed by a ghost that is known to science, and as peculiar noises are being heard lately about the city hall he is quite anxious to secure the hind foot and ward off any ghosts that might linger about the historic building.

It should not be thought for an instant that Billy believes in ghosts. Far from it, but when a man is soundly sleeping and is aroused by an unusual sound it is about time that something was investigated. The other night while Billy was peacefully reposing he was awakened by a terrific crash. Billy leaped up with a bound and dashed into police headquarters and the men on duty at the hall started on a tour of investigation, but found nothing.

"Is mighty mysterious," muttered Billy "but I was awakened by a funny noise."

Some of Billy's friends on the police force have been rude enough to suggest that the noise Billy heard was simply an unusually loud snore that he emitted while sleeping. Billy does not deny the fact that he sometimes snores but said he "It takes more than a snore to wake me up, believe me."

Other unusual noises have been heard at night at the hall and Billy's slumbers are no longer as peaceful as they were, and in order that Billy might be able to sleep in comfort it is urged that his friends hurry up and present him with the left hind foot of a rabbit. In order to be an effective charm the rabbit must be caught in the dark of the moon.

P. S. It developed later that the unusual noise that awakened Billy the other night was some ice sliding off the roof during the warm spell, but you can't convince Billy of that.

SWIFT AGRICULTURE.

Agriculture is trotting a two-wheeled gait these days. It takes a hustler to keep up with everything agricultural. All kinds of educators are telling us how, all sorts of demonstrators showing us what is what. A host of investigators is busy digging up facts for us, and the farm management experts are surveying our business with their glasses on. No doubt much good will come out of all these things, but maybe we'd better try to assimilate it gradually than to get indigestion in an attempt to surround it all at once while we holler for more.—National Stockman and Farmer.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS FOR FARMER

Professor McNair Indorses This System of Lighting For Farm Homes.

Safety and convenience are important factors to be considered by those who propose to install an improved lighting system in the home as well as in the outbuildings. With these facts in mind Professor G. B. McNair of the Kansas Agricultural college strongly indorses the electric lighting system for the farm. On this subject he says: "Twelve years ago farm lighting plants were a novelty; today they are rapidly growing in popularity. They are usually operated by a gasoline engine, but in the eastern states and especially in the Appalachian mountains it is not uncommon to see water power used for this purpose. Where the people have water power the storage battery is not used."

In every state where farmers care at all for convenience one will find a number of lighting plants. Some farmers prefer the blaugas, acetylene or gasoline lighting systems, so that they may utilize the heat, but there is a certain element of danger in using these systems.

Plants, including engine, generator, battery and switchboard, can be bought for $134 up. One must bear in mind, however, that one gets only what one pays for, consequently it may prove poor economy to buy the cheapest plant. Such plants are of very small capacity, will operate only a few lights and must be charged every day.

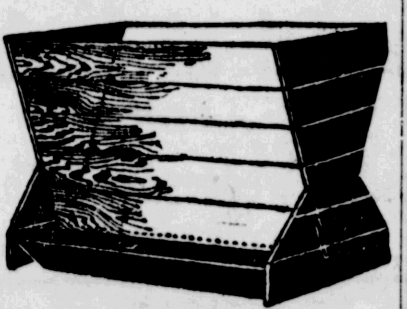

A plant such as the average farmer owns costs about $400, which does not include the cost of installation, wiring of house, cost of fixtures and similar items. Where a farmer can buy power from a company whose line runs near his house he will find it much more economical to do this than to put in his own plant. In the first place, there is no upkeep expense on the plant, and his yearly bill from the company will not equal the interest and depreciation alone for the private plant. The average bill for light to such a user would be about $36 a year.

The housewife who has electricity on the farm does not have to bother with smoke or dirt from gas or oil lamps. She uses it for lighting her house, for doing her ironing, sewing, washing, sweeping and toasting the bread for breakfast.

The farmer finds the electric light a safe and convenient light for his barn.

Boarded Sheep Rack.

A boarded up feeding rack in the sheep lots or pens will prevent dirt and chaff from getting into the wool while the animals are feeding. Dirt of this kind in the wool is one of the reasons usually given by buyers for low prices paid. In some instances the chaff and dirt from the racks will work down into the wool, matting it near the hide and causing discomfort to the sheep as well as injury to the wool. Its use means a better looking flock and will also result in saving quite a good deal of feed that is ordinarily wasted.

The rack may be built double, giving as much feeding space on one side as the other. The double racks are best for the open lots.—Farm Progress.

Pear Orchards Profitable.

Pear orchards, where conditions are favorable, may be more profitable than an apple orchard, for the reason that pears are not so generally grown as apples. The pear delights in a clay soil and is not so apt to crop regularly on a loamy soil, and trees on the latter seem more susceptible to attacks from disease than the former.

When the orchard is first set corn can be grown with the pear trees to advantage. Cultivation should be discontinued early in July and a cover crop of vetch or clover sowed.

In cultivating in orchards of any kind care must be exercised not to cultivate deeply near the trees. Late cultivation is not desirable around trees of any kind, as it encourages late growth instead of permitting the wood to harden sufficiently before winter weather sets in. As the trees grow older more fertilizer will be required. Pear trees require but light pruning each year, shortening back the new growth some, and the trees must be regularly sprayed. Where heavy crops set the fruit should be thinned, as is common with peaches.

Chatham's Errors.

Chatham, at the time of his decease, had not in both houses of parliament personal adherents. Half the public men of the age had been estranged from him by his errors and the other half by the exertions which he had made to repair his errors.—Macaulay.

WE ARE NOW LOCATED IN OUR FINE NEW STORE CORNER OF STRAND AND HASBROUCK AVENUE

In the Cordts Building, formerly occupied by Block's Bazaar. Notwithstanding having many more feet of floor space than in the old store, we find ourselves crowded in the arrangement of goods which we moved and new spring material which is arriving. Therefore we are going to continue our former remarkable low prices which we established in our great and successful Removal Sale, and make the public another offer of

Little Talks With

Want Ad Readers

Of course, you have read of the usages of the kings and people of the ages before printing was known. You have read how, when the king wished to issue a proclamation to the people, he sent forth heralds, or criers, who walked through all the cities and dominions ringing bells and blowing horns and reading the sovereign's will to his subjects.

This process took days and weeks before the proclamation reached the utmost boundaries of the king's dominions and often longer, if the kingdom were large.

Then, later, when printing was invented, the king's proclamations were printed and sent by courier through all the kingdom and nailed up in the market places where the people could read them.

Merchants and business and professional men of all kinds soon began to see the value of this sort of advertising and used it as much as possible to advertise their wares and needs and businesses.

But printing, being in its infancy, this was very costly advertising and could only be used by the very rich—and even by them most sparingly.

But, gradually, printing became cheaper and the newspaper was instituted and then advertising became more general, but even at this time it was expensive and so window signs and placard work was resorted to very generally.

But, later on, there came that great boom to business men and women and, in fact, to the great masses of the people generally—The Want Ad. At first it was laughed at, like all great things are, but, little by little, people began to see its possibilities and started using it.

The result is seen today in the Want Columns of any newspaper you pick up. Hundreds and thousands of people are advertising their needs and wants through the medium of the Want Columns every day.

The lesson for you is that, if you are not already a daily reader and frequent user of the Want Ads, you had better get busy at once and become one, for it is the most up-to-date and efficient and reasonably priced form of advertising there is.

CHURCH FOLK HEAR OF CAUSES OF POVERTY

The Woman's Society of the Round Presbyterian Church has made an acceptable contribution to the Bureau of Social Service in the shape of sheets, pillow cases and bedding, which were made by the members of the society. These articles have been distributed by the Bureau of Social Service to families where they were most needed, and additional contributions of a similar nature can be used by the bureau to good advantage.

At the mid-week prayer meeting service of the church Mrs. Laura MacMillan, secretary of the bureau, gave a short talk on the conditions found by the bureau in carrying on its work in Kingston, and the causes of poverty.

The causes of poverty were classified by Mrs. MacMillan as follows: Death of the male member of the family; deserted wives; shiftless husbands; unemployment; sickness; handicap caused by illness, accident or deformity; old age; intemperance.

Frequently the bureau finds several of the causes enumerated, contributing to poverty of the family, but in most cases needing attention one of the causes is found to exist, combined with sickness.

Without mentioning names or localities, brief descriptions were given of some of the families to whom the supplies contributed by the women of the church were furnished by the bureau, and the comfort they had brought to the members of such families.

The chapel of the church was well filled, and the work of the bureau was more thoroughly understood and appreciated than ever before.

Next week the membership committee and board of directors of the Bureau of Social Service will hold a meeting for the purpose of perfecting plans for conducting a membership campaign in the near future.

FIGHTING SERBIAN MAID NOW SERGEANT.

An Expert C. E. Class.

An "Expert Christian Endeavor Class" to be conducted by State Secretary Harold A. Waite of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union will have its first session on Wednesday evening, March 1, in the Y. M. C. A. parlors. This class will be held under the auspices of the Kingston Local Union of Christian Endeavor, of which W. W. Brady, Jr., is president. All young people whether they are Christian Endeavorers or not who desire to learn more about the Bible and how to use in church work are invited to join this class. Mr. Waite is well known among the young people of Kingston and vicinity and is an active Endeavor worker. He has spoken here several times under the auspices of the Kingston Local Union. A small fee which covers the cost of the text book to be used will be charged those uniting with the class. This class affords an exceptional opportunity for the young people of this city.

MIDGETS DEFEAT ARROW FIVE

Another team aspiring for the Midget basketball championship of this locality was trailed in the dust by the high school Midgets in a game in the gymnasium Thursday afternoon, the high school Midgets winning from the Arrow Five the one sided score of 47 to 22. The Arrows showed cause to name themselves thusly by their speed but it was mostly individual, and as a result their opponents' superior team work won out.

Eleven basketballers were used by the Midgets and they all are about on the same level in basketball skill. This little competition between the members of the team for berths as regulars spurs the players to their best form. Ryan was the best shot for the Arrows, while Martin tallied most points for his team, sinking 8 field goals in the basket while he was in the lineup. The score:

Arrow Five	FB	FP	TP

JOE WOOD. GIANTS MAY SIGN JOE WOOD.

New York, Feb. 25.—"Smoky Joe" Wood, the once famous pitcher of the Boston Red Sox, is now in New York and is looking for a job and rumor has it that he may be signed by the Giants.

"At present my arm appears to be all right," Wood says. "But I don't know how it will be when I try to cut it loose at a batter. Personally I think I can pitch just as well as ever, but it is evident that the Red Sox thought I was slipping or the management would not have asked for waivers. I am anxious to get with some good team and try my arm out. If it isn't right I will be the first to ask release. If my pitching days are over I want to quit and get in some other line of endeavor. I want to be certain, though, I have had no information at all as to what will become of me as the time is getting close I would like to know."

BURMA'S COLOSSAL BUDDHA.

This Statue is Said to Be the Largest in the World.

The largest monument of the human form existing in the east today, if not in the world, is the great reclining statue of Buddha near Pegu, in Burma, around which the government erected a building with lattice steel pillars to protect it from the elements. This colossal was brought to light during the construction of the railway that runs northeast from Rangoon to Mandalay.

While the permanent way was being banked up to protect the lines from occasional floods the engineer in charge required for the purpose of his work a harder ballast than the alluvial deposit over which the line was running could give him. Less than a mile away was a tree clad mound, and here, it was thought, suitable material might be found. The task of clearing away some of the trees took but an hour or so, and then shafts were sunk to find the needed stone. Before the diggers had gone down more than a yard they struck an enormous and fairly preserved figure of Gautama.

In actual length the statue is 180 feet and fifty feet high at the shoulder. The figure and its pedestal are of brick, covered with plaster. Since its discovery the plaster has been removed and painted over, the box at the head and the finger nails gilded and the headless decorated with glass jewels. The statue is thought to be about 500 years old, but no one knows its history, no reference whatever being made to it in Burmese legends or traditions.—Wide World Magazine.

The Stars.
There is no room for reasonable doubt about the claim of the astronomers that they "know perfectly well what the stars are made of." The instrument by the aid of which the substance of the stars is determined is called the "spectroscope," and its findings are almost infallible.

Appreciative Robert.
We were having a turkey dinner and expecting company. Little Robert came over and, seeing the turkey, asked to stay. After a generous helping he looked up with a bright smile and said: "Didn't God make a good thing when he made a stomach?"—Exchange.

Wanted Papa to Keep Out.
Don and his brother were having a scrap on the front porch, and when their father called them into the house to see what they were quarreling about, Don said: "Oh, papa, we were just scrapping a little, and it would be awful if you would get mixed up in it yet."

TRAPPING A PYTHON.

The Monster Is a Victim of His Own Greedy Appetite.

The python's weak point is its stomach; it is a glutton. Not satisfied with a full supper, it will start at once on next week's breakfast if by chance that future meal happens to be within easy reach.

A python generally lives in a hole in the ground or a hollow in a tree, but if it can find an old ruin in the jungle—and there are many old ruins in India—it likes to take up its sleeping quarters there, because even in the heaviest rains the water runs off the ruins quickly, whereas a hole in the ground is likely to be flooded. The python needs to eat only once a week, and to get that meal it lies flat along the bough of a tree near a stream and waits for its prey to come to drink.

When the natives see the long trail that the python's body makes near the bank and find a heap of ruins near by they make a hole in the ruined wall just exactly big enough for the python to get through. Then they tie a pig to a stake near the hole on one side of the wall, and on the other side of the wall opposite the hole they tie another pig to a stake. They also tie a wire to the leg or the tail of the near side pig, and as evening draws on they twist it from a distance, and the pig squeals. As the python comes home to bed it hears the squeals.

So the python comes along merrily and seizes its supper at a single bite. Down goes the pig into the big snake's throat, sucked in slowly by sheer muscular action. In about half an hour the pig has passed completely down the long neck, and in another half hour it is down a couple of yards farther into the python's stomach.

Most animals would go to sleep right away after a gorge like that. But meanwhile the second pig on the other side of the wall has realized its unhappy brother's woeful fate and has set up a most distressing noise. The python puts its head through the hole and sees it.

"Ah!" it says to itself. "Here's my next week's breakfast!"
And instead of waiting for next week to come that greedy python swallows the second pig too. The wily natives wait until the second pig is well on its way down the python's body; then they have the snake caught. Pig No. 1 prevents it from advancing, and pig No. 2 prevents it from retreating. The natives lasso the python around the neck, break down the wall and pass a coil of rope between the two Gates in Norway.

A curious feature to travelers in the highlands of Norway is the great number of gates—upward of 10,000 in the whole country—which have to be opened. These gates, which either mark the boundaries of the farms or separate the home fields from the waste lands, constitute a considerable inconvenience and delay to the traveler who has to stop his vehicle and get down to open them.

Victory in Bravery.
"All work of man is as the swimmer's. A waste ocean threatens to devour him; if he front it not bravely he will keep it word. By incessant defiance of it, lusty rebuke and support of it, behold how loyally it buffers him—hears him as its conqueror along."—Thomas Carlyle.

HOLMES GOES BACK AS STEAMER PURSER

Gordon A. Holmes, proprietor of the Mansion House on lower Broadway for the past year, has accepted a position as purser on one of the coast line steamers of the United Fruit Company, and left this morning for New York city to assume his duties. His boat sails from New York for Panama on Saturday. Mr. Holmes was a purser on one of the coast line steamers of another company before he resigned to take up the management of the Mansion House.

Mr. Holmes's lease does not expire until the last of the month, and the hotel will be kept open by his employees until that time when the property will be taken over by the owner, Mrs. Von Beck, who it is understood will continue the management of the hotel.

Mr. Holmes during his residence in this city made a number of friends by his genial personality and character.

To Speak For Circles of Mercy.

The general public is invited to the chapel of the First Dutch Church Saturday afternoon at four o'clock, to hear Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard, international chairman of the Surgical Dressings Committee, (to which organization have been sent the surgical dressings made in this city,) speak.

Mrs. Willard will tell, not only of the work of this committee, but of her recent visit to the war zone, her experiences while there and en route to and from Europe. As this is the first time that the people of Kingston have had the opportunity of hearing from one who has actually been at the front, it is expected that the chapel of the First Dutch Church will be filled tomorrow afternoon, especially as there will be no admission to this address.

Glee Club Rehearsal.

The Y. M. C. A. Glee Club rehearsal will be held next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Every member is requested to be present, as it is now time that rehearsals should be very active. Each member will kindly make an extra effort in attending each rehearsal from this date on. It will be necessary to cut the membership of all those who are not in a position to attend rehearsals regularly.

SHOKAN.

Shokan, Feb. 24.—On Friday evening, March 3, the young people of Mt. Tremper Church will give a play entitled, "Farm Folks," in Davis's Hall at Ashokan, under the auspices of the Community Club of Olive. Undoubtedly there will be a large number of our people out to see this show, which has been presented twice in Mt. Tremper Hall. Tickets are now on sale by the members of the club.

Saturday's heavy wind storm caused the mountain roads to drift badly. Saturday was some day in these parts.

The revival services, which have been held in the church the past two weeks, came to a close Sunday evening. These meetings were very much enjoyed by our folks.

James Giles is preparing to move to the Homer Markle place on Dibble avenue.

Marion Longyear of Kingston spent the holiday with her grandparents here.

Invitations are out for a party and entertainment to be given by the Boy's Club of the Sunday school in Winchell's Hall on March 10.

R. Secor has men at work getting out ties on his mountain wood lot. "Saw Mill" Jones has charge of the job.

Frank Waters of Kingston is getting out a large number of ties and posts on the Winchell farm.

Chester Shults of Glenford does the hewing for Waters.

February 28, 1857, the Democratic caucus was held at W. D. Beadle's in the evening and on the following Tuesday the entire ticket with the exception of commissioner of highways was elected, including N. W. Watson supervisor. On Sunday, February 24, 1850, Asplund and Catherine Barringer were married and the following Saturday William C. Markle and Catherine Wood were made man and wife.

On Sunday, February 20, 1852, the Rev. David Abbey preached in the Dutch Church. Tuesday, March 1, 1853, Hiram Humphrey, the Whig candidate for supervisor of Olive, was elected by 65 majority. Martin Schmitt was elected justice on the same ticket.

Tuesday, March 6, 1855, the "Know Nothing" town ticket was elected by the combined Whig and Democratic forces.

Columbia
Note the Notes

Hearing is believing!

THAT is the one proof—the final test of the qualities of a musical instrument. And measured by that test, the Columbia Grafonola superbly proves its right to the title of "The One Incomparable Instrument of Music."

TO HEAR it is to feel the thrill of absolute reality. Its tone is so pure, crystal-clear, and flawlessly true to life that it well-nigh makes the hearer forget the presence of an instrument.

TO HEAR it play a delicate, airy bit of chamber-music, then a tremendous orchestral symphony, is to gain a new conception of its marvelous range and power. No detail or shading of a theme is lost, and the peculiar tones of all instruments are returned with the musical values unaltered.

TO HEAR it with critical appreciation of its musical possibilities is truly to feel convinced that art and science could hardly go further in the reproduction of musical sound.

"Hearing is Believing." Put the Columbia Grafonola to the final test today. There is a Columbia dealer near you who will gladly arrange a demonstration.

SAVE MONEY BY TRADING AT Lay's Saturday Sale

"What's your husband's income?" asked an inquisitive woman of a friend at our market the other day. "Oh, generally about 2 a. m." was the answer, which illustrates just about how seriously a certain class of married women consider a subject which should, under no circumstances, be regarded in the light of a jest. It is the husband's income that in 99 out of 100 cases pays the household expenses—which provides food, clothing, heat, light and shelter—and in about 50 per cent of the instances referred to women are reckless in their expenditures, especially when buying meats. They "fall for" the bait thrown out by a certain class of marketmen who offer quantity instead of quality in order to create low prices, and meats bought of them are expensive at any price because they frequently are unfit for consumption. Why not apply a small portion of the husband's income to buying high-grade meats such as we cut and save money in doing so? Try it here Saturday and see how much further you will be ahead.

NEW YORK WOULD CLEAR WATERSHED

Under Gulse of Protecting its Water Supply the Wagner Bills Would Depopulate Large Sections of Westchester and Ulster Counties.

Pollution of the Croton and Ashokan watersheds by the erection of correctional institutions on the lands embraced within such sections is at issue in bills introduced in the state senate by Senator Wagner on which a hearing was held at Albany on Thursday before a joint session of the senate finance committee and the assembly ways and means committee, who considered at the same time bills introduced by Senator Slater providing that the city of New York shall reimburse the counties affected for their losses sustained through the operation of the bills, and also that the city of New York establish a filtering plant so that sewage from two contemplated institutions in the Croton watershed cannot contaminate the city's water supply.

Primary Objects of the Bills.

The Wagner bills were drawn primarily to regulate sewage and prevent pollution of the Croton watershed, and especially affect the construction of two correctional institutions which it is proposed to erect in Westchester county, but they are sufficiently comprehensive to embrace Ulster county also, for which reason the supervisors' legislative committee, accompanied by County Attorney John W. Eckert, journeyed to Albany and attended the hearing.

Sewage of Six Thousand People.

The institutions which the state of New York proposes to erect in Westchester county are the New York Training School for Boys and the Mohansic State Hospital, which will have over 6,000 inmates and attendants at the start, and will produce, according to evidence submitted to the senate and assembly committees, over half a million gallons of sewage daily. It is proposed to erect the schools on opposite sides of Mohansic Lake, which lies seven and a half miles distant from Croton Lake and at an elevation of 280 feet above it.

The Alternatives.

The state of New York has purchase sites for the two institutions. In the case of the Training School for Boys, work has already advanced until $350,000 has been expended. The insane asylum has not yet been built, but the site cost over $137,000. Senator Wagner's bills provide for abandoning these sites and building the institutions elsewhere, on the ground that the sewage from the institutions, after passing through disposal plants, will flow into the sources of the Croton water supply. The Slater bills provide the alternatives of a filtering plant to be erected by the city of New York, at an estimated cost of $9,000,000, or payment of consequential damages in the event of the two institutions being taken out of the watershed.

Filtration Attacked As Inadequate.
The successful operation of filtration plants was attacked by experts of the city of New York, who contend that no filtration plant can be constructed which can be relied upon, that sewage from correctional institutions is more dangerous than other sewage, and that since it has been established that germs remain alive after traveling for eighteen hours over eighty miles of distance, the danger of pollution from the two institutions, which would be carried from Mohansic Lake to Croton Lake in six hours' time, is real and not imaginary.

Filtration Plants Not Dependable.
Experts have been employed by those who favor the removal of the institutions from the Croton watershed, as well as by those who favor their being allowed to remain there. The experts do not agree on what the results will be. Advocates of allowing the institutions to remain claimed that a proper filtration plant can be erected, with a pumping station and pipe line to the Hudson river; opponents of the institutions being located on the watershed submitted statements that all sewage disposal plants are subject to breakdowns, and largely dependent for their successful operation on the use of coring, which on account of its deadly qualities is used in trench warfare in Europe and therefore is handled shirkingly by unskilled attendants who become fearful of its effects on themselves.

Westchester Fears Depopulation.

The Merchants' Association of New York, and officials of that city, appear in favor of the bills which would prevent completion of the institutions at Mohansic Lake, together with representatives of a number of New York city civic associations and organizations; the provisions of the bills which would exclude the erection of buildings in the watersheds were opposed by representatives of Westchester, Ulster, Putnam and Greene counties, which are most directly affected.

Senator Slater of Westchester predicted that the Wagner bills, if passed, would depopulate his county and were intended for that purpose, and that the removal of the institutions would be followed by an attempt to remove county institutions and eventually the dwellings on the watershed.

The Three Wagner Bills.

Of the three bills introduced by Senator Wagner, the first would protect the Croton watershed from pollution through an amendment of the public health law by prohibiting the location and construction of an institution for the treatment or care of persons affected with mental or other diseases or for correctional or charitable purposes, upon territory in Westchester, Putnam and Dutchess counties drained by the Croton river or its tributaries above the Croton dam, which territory is known as the Croton watershed. The location of such an institution, the bill further provides, may be restrained on suit of the state commissioner of health, the board of health of the city of New York, or of any person residing within such terri-

Understand Fully What This Means

Here is a carpet sweeper that should retail in the neighborhood of $2.00 because it will do—and do well—exactly what a good carpet sweeper should.

It is light in weight and strong—it is perfectly sanitary—it harbors no germs.

It is all metal, enameled in mahogany grain and nickel plated trimming.

It is fitted with best bristle brush and "easy clean" pans. The wheels are rubber-tired and spring set, thus allowing the brush to get close to the carpet and pick up the smallest particles of lint. Elastic webbing prevents scratching the furniture, and a metal cap socket prevents the handle from coming loose.

A sweeper like the "Hygeno" is needed in every home, because it is more sanitary than the broom, and, being built of steel, will last for years.

You will note the easy running of the "Hygeno" and how strongly it is built.

MISS YVONNE GOURAUD. PRINCE ALEXANDER BISKINOFF. PRINCESS AIMEE MISKINOFF.

LEADING FIGURES IN MISKINOFF LOVE TANGLE.

Yvonne is the foster daughter of Princess Miskinoff and the cause of many quarrels with the latter and her husband. At the suggestion of the Princess herself, the Prince and Yvonne underwent a three-months' love test.

Prince Miskinoff, who is considerably younger than his wife, admits he was fascinated by the latter's foster daughter, Yvonne. The girl, he said, was simply irresistible at times. He claims she did all she could to attract his notice.

Princess Miskinoff had had several stormy marital experiences before her marriage to the Prince, but none that compared to her troubles with him. Note the tattooing on her arm.

lands above the Ashokan reservoir, and the present bills were introduced at the request of some department of the city to make life so unpleasant in Ulster county that owners above the reservoir would be glad to get out of that section at any price.

"The Lilac Domino."

"The Lilac Domino" will be presented by Andreas Dippel at the Kingston Opera House Tuesday night only. This is the great three-act musical success of beauty, fun and fashion by Charles Cuvillier which took New York, Boston and Philadelphia by storm and has just finished a most successful engagement in Chicago. The cast is one which would do justice to any grand opera. The production and the whole presentation is on a scale of exceptional magnificence. Seats on sale tomorrow.

ST. REMY.

St. Remy, Feb. 24.—The Local Temperance Legion will have an entertainment in the St. Remy Church on Friday evening, March 3, consisting of recitations, solos and dialogues. Admission 10 cents. Ice cream and cake will be for sale. The stormy, the next evening. Every one come out and thereby encourage the young people in their good work.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

When Robert Dwight married Mildred Corson every one said that they would be happy if Dwight did not go on the stage, for which he had a strong leaning. Mildred was very much in love with him, and it was feared that if he was separated from her, to be surrounded by actresses, not only would she be jealous, but he might be tempted to leave her in the lurch.

They were married early in February, intending to go south to meet the summer coming north. A large number of friends saw them joined, pelted them with rice and old shoes, and they were driven to the dock from which they found their stateroom a mass of flowers sent to them by their friends. In two or three days they found themselves in Jacksonville, Fla.

To Mildred Dwight, who had been a lonely little stenographer when Robert fell in love with and married her, this leisurely life of the well to do was a delightful experience.

Robert Dwight was far from poor, his business was a prosperous one, and there was no economizing during this wedding trip. And, best of all, there was waiting for them in New York a luxuriously furnished apartment which was to be home.

No wonder the Dightws were blissfully happy, and it is not surprising that on this winter morning Mildred looked from her hotel window into a summer land of tropical flowers and singing birds and decided that this was heaven indeed.

Robert had gone out to buy some cigars at a queer little tobacco shop at the end of a crooked street, and when he returned they were going for a long drive under the palms.

Mildred glanced at the clock. Robert had been gone over an hour, and the motorcar was waiting below.

Another hour ticked away and thirty minutes more.

After the manner of brides, Mildred became alarmed over the long absence of her loved one, and, twisting a white chiffon veil over her little hat, she went out to look for him. She knew the way to the tobacco shop, and she soon reached the crooked street.

Her heart sank when she saw that down its length were an unusual number of people.

Had anything happened to Robert? She moved through the crowd, not daring to ask for fear of the answer she might receive, and she had nearly reached the end of the street and the shop when something happened—something that shattered her beautiful bubble of happiness and ended that most blissful of honeymoons.

Mildred saw Robert coming out of the tobacco shop. He paused in the doorway to light a cigarette. How handsome he looked in his well fitting white flannels, with a white hat set back on his dark hair! He tossed the match away and glanced up the street. His face brightened into radiance; his eyes glowed with excitement and lover's ardor.

Mildred thought he saw her, but he was looking at another woman, a woman who was running down the opposite pavement. Nay, she was only a slight young girl, exquisitely lovely and evidently in deep distress.

As she ran toward Robert he advanced to meet her with outstretched hands. The cigarette he had tossed aside performed a blinding parabola and fell at Mildred's feet. But she did not see it.

Her anguished eyes saw nothing save the glad look in Robert's face and the joy of the girl as she flew into his waiting arms.

"You!" cried Robert. Mildred saw no more. She fled back down the crooked street with a wildly beating heart and an insane desire to laugh loud.

Did any woman ever have such an odd ending to a honeymoon?

An hour later she left the hotel with her trunk and handbag, and what excuse she made to the clerk I do not know, but there was no message for Robert Dwight when he came home at last to find her gone.

Six months later and it was summer time in New England. Mildred Dwight had resumed her maiden name of Mildred Corson and had obtained a responsible position in one of the large manufacturing of a Connecticut city.

As Miss Corson she acceptably filled her position and won her way into the hearts of her fellow clerks. Not one of them knew of the tragedy which had blighted her honeymoon, nor did one of them guess that Mildred had ever been a bride.

She found a pleasant boarding place and congenial friends. In the city were several good theaters and an occasional concert.

Still Mildred was very unhappy. She loved her husband, and, although the newspapers had told her that Robert was making a worldwide search for his vanished bride, she maintained silence toward those who had known her in the past.

There came a Saturday in August with its customary half holiday from work. Mildred had spent a quiet afternoon in her own room, and after the evening meal one of her new acquaintances, Cora Fields, came with an invitation to attend one of the open air moving picture theaters.

Mildred rather liked the silent drama, so, clad in dainty white gown, the two girls entered the enclosure and found seats near the front.

Overhead the stars were shining, and outside the enclosure was the hum of city street traffic. The orchestra was unusually good, and Mildred found herself strangely stirred when the violins drifted into McDowell's beautiful "To a Wild Rose."

The orchestra had played the melody during their first meal in that Florida hotel, and it brought back painful memories of her brief spell of happiness.

Then the title of the play was flashed on the screen.

"Lost and Found."

With the first picture came a realizing sense of looking upon familiar scenes. Surely, surely this was the sunny south and the quaint streets those of Jacksonville.

And the girl! Mildred almost arose from her seat and cried out with surprise as she recognized the lovely face of the heroine as that of the woman who had flown to Robert's arms. So Robert's sweetheart was an actress!

One scene after another flashed before her vision, melting into a whole, which brought her, trembling and incredulous, to the moment when she found herself gazing down the crooked little street of the tobacco shop.

Then she saw her own slender figure and white veiled face looking toward the shop from which her husband, Robert, was emerging, lighting a cigarette. The entire scene was repeated, incident for incident. He tossed away the match, glanced up the street, became eager, alert, tenderly smiling, flung away his cigarette and advanced with outstretched arms to meet the heroine's graceful flying form.

Robert in the moving picture! Why, how had it happened?

All the way home she was asking herself the question, and through the darkness of her perplexity and doubt came one ray of light. During his college days Robert had been one of the college players and was considered a talented amateur actor.

"I am glad he married the girl," sighed Cora as they reached Mildred's door.

"Yes," said Mildred absently, "but he was married before that."

"Who was married before?" asked Cora, puzzled.

"Why, Robert, of course."

"But there was no Robert. His name was Arthur."

"I am stupid tonight," was Mildred's only explanation as she parted from her friend.

The next day Mildred obtained leave of absence and in her straightforward way went directly to New York and called at her husband's office.

She was trembling like a leaf when she was shown into Robert's private office.

He stared at her as one looks at the newly risen dead. His face was thin and worn and his brown hair sprinkled with gray.

"Robert!" she said meekly and then promptly fainted away. When she opened her eyes she was lying on the leather couch, and Robert was on his knees bending over her. His eyes were tender and anxious.

"Can you ever forgive me?" was her first cry.

"Yes, dearest," he said generously. "But tell me what happened to send you away from me that day? I have searched land and sea for you, and I had given you up for dead when you appeared before me."

In a few broken sentences Mildred told her husband of her surprise and jealousy that day in Jacksonville and how when she was assured of her perfidy she had taken a train for the north and disappeared. Then the motion picture play on the screen had thrown a ray of light on the matter.

Robert's explanation made that ray a brilliant light of understanding which cleared up the mystery which had parted bride and groom for almost a year.

"You remember I told you I always acted in our college theatricals," he reminded her, "and many of my friends had urged me to enter the profession. But I did not seriously consider it and only now and then hankered to tread the stage."

"But that morning in Jacksonville I started down to the tobacco shop with only one thought in my mind—to get back to you. As I turned into the street I met my old friend of college days, Jack Budlong, president of our Players' club. He was glad to see me and tearing his hair insanely over the fact that his star performer had come down with the measles that very morning."

"Budlong fell upon me like a long lost brother and pleaded with me to take the part of the measles one. So I did, and when I reached the hotel, full of my experiences and with Miss Gray and Budlong accompanying me to meet the only woman in the world, why, my wife had vanished without a word. So you believed that I was false to you?"

Mildred's punishment had been great, indeed, and she humbly acknowledged her lack of faith. "But how was I to know?" she asked pitifully.

Robert smiled wisely. "In great love there is no faltering of faith," he gently reminded her as he drew her face to his shoulder. "As the man in the play lost and found his sweetheart, so I lost my wife and have found her."

"With a greater love for you and unwavering faith," finished Mildred.

Wily Politician. "Why do you insist on having that old enemy of yours mentioned for the presidency?" "Because," said Senator Sorghum, "I wish to call attention to the fact that he couldn't get it if he tried."—Washington Star.

Mountains. These great cathedrals of the earth, with their gates of rocks, pavements of clouds, choirs of stream and stone, altars of snow, and vaults of purple traversed by the continual stars.—Hoskin.

FOR EARLY SPRING.

So Modish Is This Costume of Such Quaint Lines.

A NEW MODEL.

Cut of tan silk poplin with a full skirt and a flared basque-like coat, this suit is springy as possible. All shades of tan are now good style. A picturesque effect is gained by the smocking around the frilled collar and the narrow velvet ribbon banding. The cuffs and buttons are also novel.

FOUR DUMPLINGS.

A Run on These Appetizers So Seasonable For Winter.

Chicken Dumplings.—Mix and sift three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half level teaspoonful of salt with two cupfuls of flour. Add sufficient milk to make a soft dough. Roll lightly on a floured board and cut into small biscuits. Place on a greased plate in a steamer and cook twenty minutes. Do not move or uncover the steamer while the dumplings are cooking. Do not start to make the dumplings until the chicken is tender. It can wait, but not the dumplings.

Suet Dumplings.—One cupful of finely chopped beef suet, one generous pint of flour, one teaspoonful of black pepper, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt. Mix well together and add enough cold water to make as thick as biscuit dough. Roll out and cut with a biscuit cutter or knife, drop into boiling water and cook for one-half hour. Drain and serve hot. Serve with roast meat, or the dumplings may be slightly browned in the oven after boiling. They are also good added to a meat stew.

Liver Dumplings.—Chop one-half pound of liver and one-fourth pound of bacon, uncooked, as fine as possible. Beat two eggs lightly and add one-fourth cupful of butter to them. Then add the meat, the seasonings of chopped parsley, white herbs, salt and pepper and one and one-half cupfuls of breadcrumbs, adding more breadcrumbs if necessary. This will depend on the softness or dryness of the crumbs and on the size of the eggs. The mixture should be just stiff enough to make a paste which can be formed into balls. Divide into portions, roll smoothly in the hands and poach in boiling water before boiling, cooking about fifteen minutes.

Potato Dumplings.—Grate four cold boiled potatoes and add to them one cupful of stale breadcrumbs soaked in a little milk, just enough to moisten. Add also one cupful of breadcrumbs crisped in a little butter or drippings. Add two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of flour and seasoning of salt, pepper and nutmeg. Form into medium sized balls and steam or boil twenty minutes. Turn on to a serving dish and sprinkle with the remaining fried breadcrumbs.

No Pins or Sewing.

Here's a good way to save both time and labor and yet enable one to always have a clean ironing sheet at home: Take a length of factory cotton a little longer than the ironing board. If the board is of ordinary width one length will make two sheets or a change. Hem each side with small pieces of tape, attach small brass rings (such as are used for stocking bags or fancy work) about nine inches apart and lace across the underside of board with tape or corset strings. This does away with the old way of tacking or pinning the sheet on board and makes it easy to remove.

Kidney Stew.

Cut kidney in small pieces, rejecting tubes and hard portion; blanch, then cook until tender, adding one onion finely minced. When tender thicken gravy slightly with two tablespoonfuls of butter rolled in two tablespoonfuls of flour; add one tablespoonful of finely minced parsley. Place a border of mashed potatoes around the dish and all the kidney in the center.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Feb. 24.—Order of the Eastern Star held their regular meeting Monday evening. After the work they had a Colonial party and a box lunch. On account of the severe weather there was a small attendance, only a few being dressed in their old time costumes. There was considerable sport when the contest for men took place to trim hats. Byron Clearwater walked off with the first prize. There will be no need of women going to New York or Poughkeepsie for their hats this spring. They all had a lot of sport out of it. With the regular work the marshal was installed and a box luncheon was enjoyed and those present spent a pleasant evening and seemed to be counted in the U. E. S.

Mrs. Solomon G. Carpenter of Vineyard Avenue entertained the P. E. O. Society at her home on Thursday. The program was of the "Famous Women in History."

Prayer meeting was held on Tuesday evening at the home of George Coutant, North Road, and was well attended despite the very cold weather.

Several from this place were anxious to hear the lecture last Sunday at Cohen's Theater, Poughkeepsie, and they were well pleased. The subject was "Why God Made Women," and many were anxious to know and hear this orator, and he gave good questions and answers and told the truth in many of his sayings.

Peter Schantz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schantz, was in New Palitz recently visiting school friends.

Hassorouck Terwilliger of Clinton, N. Y., was a caller on New Palitz people last week.

Frank Simpson was in New Palitz this week. He is a frequent visitor there.

Arthur Merritt has been spending a few days in the metropolis taking in the sights.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Pratt have relatives visiting them from West Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Miller of Poughkeepsie were in this place on Wednesday attending the funeral of the late Andrew Upright, an uncle of Mrs. Miller.

Mrs. Winans of Poughkeepsie and Miss Mena and Caroline Gillman of the same place attended the funeral services of the late Andrew Upright Wednesday.

Edgar Davis was a week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Merritt. He is attending Syracuse University.

Mrs. Sarah Krom of Jersey City has spent several days with her sister, Mrs. Joseph Schantz, and while in town called on other relatives and friends.

Friday afternoon Mrs. G. Norrie of suffrage fame was at the home of Mrs. A. W. Lent. She is leader of the 10th district, we were informed.

Miss Alice Carey will leave here to make her home in the future in Buffalo with her sister, Mrs. Fred Kaiser. These people were here for the funeral of James Carey, the father of Mrs. Kaiser.

W. Foster's hall Saturday evening, February 26. Music by an orchestra from Poughkeepsie.

The family of William Huson will move from here March 1. They are going to Putnam county and Mr. and Mrs. Zophar Aldrich will move to the same place. People of this place regret their departure.

Go to M. E. Church on March 3 and hear the lecture by Dr. MacRossie. Subject, "The Great Cities of the World."

Few men from here went to Newburgh recently and were initiated as members of Highland Chapter, Royal Arch Masons. They speak highly of the work and spend a delightful evening with their brothers.

Music Study Club held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon. Miss Carol Schofield was the hostess at the Presbyterian manse and her brother, the Rev. G. H. Scofield, acted as guest. An interesting program was given and at the conclusion refreshments were served.

A supper will be held in the M. E. Church parlor Friday evening, March 10, under the auspices of Auxiliary Club and a good time for all who attend. Also first class supper. You get your money's worth every time you go there.

Auxiliary Club of M. E. Church will hold their regular meeting on March 3 at "Glen View," the home of the president. They expect a large delegation as there is a great deal of business to come up before the members.

Mrs. Charles DuBois has been suffering for a few days from a severe cold.

A jolly lot of people gave a surprise party to Eddie Townsend last Friday night. They amused themselves with games of various sorts, and then a box luncheon was enjoyed. All declared they spent a delightful evening.

We think there must be a great attraction at Walden for Livingston Rhoades visits there quite often.

Miss Bessie Dickinson had week end guests from New Palitz.

Mr. and Mrs. LeGrand Haviland were shoppers in Poughkeepsie last week.

Mrs. Daniel Kurtz and sister, Mrs. Walter Constantine were in Poughkeepsie last Thursday visiting friends, and they report a very delightful time.

Miss Ada Whitmore has been quite ill at her home.

Mrs. Edward Schofield entertained the members of the W. C. T. U. at her home Thursday afternoon last.

This meeting took the form of a memorial for Frances E. Willard.

There were quite a number present and a short program was given, which was very interesting.

Friday evening last a small party of people was invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt DuBois for dinner, and all present spent a pleasant evening.

We were sorry to hear that H. Scott Corwin has tendered his resignation with the Central Hudson Steamboat Co. to take effect April 1. Mr. Corwin had a host of friends.

He had been with the company for years and now he is going to take up his abode in Maryland. His many friends wish him success.

Katherine Schantz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Schantz, on Friday evening gave a sleigh ride party

Our enterprising storekeeper, Herbert Seaman, has purchased a Ford car from Louis Smith.

Mrs. Mary E. Townsend was a visitor in Poughkeepsie last Thursday.

We are informed that J. Mellins is going to erect a new house for himself and family on his newly acquired property in this place. Highland is becoming a very fine residential place.

One of our florists has taken a partner in with him, a Mrs. Eunice Adams of New Palitz. They were married last Saturday. All wish to extend congratulations and hope their path through life may be bordered with roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Miller of Poughkeepsie were guests last Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Terpening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lent entertained guests from Poughkeepsie this week.

Miss Mollie Carey will we hear resume her work at the store of Mr. Spitz in Poughkeepsie and make her home in that city for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hopper of Vineyard Avenue had as their guest this week, Mrs. Harry Schoonmaker of Brooklyn.

On Wednesday evening, March 1, there will be given in the D. of A. room an entertainment, under direction of Mrs. A. W. Lent. This takes the form of a "Mother Goose" affair and also a short musical part first which will be enjoyed we know and then we were informed they will have ice cream and cake on sale.

so the D. of A. may enrich their treasury at this time.

The patriotic exercises and presentation of flag to the high school by the Jr. O. U. A. M. took place on Tuesday evening at the school building and was very interesting. They had a good program, consisting of recitations, orchestra music, and vocal selections by pupils. The flag was presented by O. C. Stibbs of Poughkeepsie who is past chief counselor of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and the response by Principal E. A. Marsh, both reminded us of the birthday of the "Father of His Country," and may we be impressed that the stars under which we were born, beam with bright promises and kindle lofty hopes and the great principle "that all men were created equal" is the only broad foundation of true greatness and if all take courage and begin at the bottom round on the ladder, it will be possible you will reach the top, and may the rich blessings of a kind Providence abide with the instructors and pupils of Highland High School.

Mrs. Daniel Kurtz spent Thursday out of town.

Mrs. Winans of Poughkeepsie was a guest of her mother, Mrs. George Main last Thursday on Washington Avenue.

Mrs. D. T. Aldrich, mother of Isaac Aldrich passed away at his home on Milton Avenue Thursday morning last. She has been sick for a long time. She lived to be 92 years and was a few months old. Funeral services were held at the home of her son Friday afternoon, Feb. 18, at 2 o'clock, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. J. C. Coddington, pastor of the M. E. Church here, officiated. His spoken will long be remembered. He spoke most beautifully of the life of the deceased and it was shown, she set her affections on things above with which there is no variableness or shadow of turning. This mother was wise for in her young days she laid up her treasures in heaven. Many floral emblems were in evidence. The interment was in Sullivan county. Funeral director, W. E. Wilcox.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon for the late Andrew Upright, who died on Monday afternoon. He had been a resident of this place for 20 years, and was well-known. The Rev. J. C. Coddington, pastor of the First M. E. Church, officiated, and gave a fine sermon. The services were largely attended, and a number of members of Odd Fellows' Lodge, from New Palitz, also some from the Knights of Pythias, of Poughkeepsie. Mr. Upright was a member of these orders.

The floral emblems from relatives and friends, also from lodges, were numerous and beautiful, and of many designs, showing the high esteem in which he was held. He will be greatly missed in the home and in the community. We tender our deep sympathy to the bereaved widow and son and to the families of dear ones, who have been called to mourn the loss of one they loved.

The interment was in Highland cemetery, under direction of W. E. Wilcox.

C. Jansen and family of Wallkill were in town Wednesday attending the funeral of the late Andrew Upright.

Mrs. Benjamin Johnston, Sr., has returned to his home here, after spending quite some time in Albany with her daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson.

Mrs. Clarence Leroy, who has been spending several weeks with her people in the metropolis, has been quite ill. At present she is recovering and expects to arrive here soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller had visitors last week from out of town.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Decker entertained guests from Poughkeepsie this week.

CABINET BEHIND THE PRESIDENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The cabinet today assured President Wilson that its members were behind him to a man in the decision to refuse to permit congressional interference in the international situation. Even the members who have been inclined to believe that conciliation tactics would be worth trying endorsed the declarations contained in the president's letter to Senator Stone and his warnings to the house leaders who conferred with him earlier in the day.

The entire international situation was thoroughly canvassed. It was understood that the general sentiment expressed by both the president and Secretary Lansing was that hope for an amicable settlement of the questions at issue with Germany should not be abandoned. The indications were that Germany eventually will agree to stand by her original promises. Lansing is understood to have said:

SOCIETY NOTES.

The S. A. Club met with Mrs. Henry Torpening of St. James street Thursday afternoon.

All plans are well under way for the leap year dance to be given by the Loyal Friends' Aid Society at the Hebrew School on Spring street, Tuesday, February 29.

Tuesday evening Miss Hazel Roosa delightfully entertained a number of friends at her home in Hurley in honor of her birthday. Games and music were enjoyed. Prizes being awarded Leonard Lockwood and Lawrence Baker. Delicious refreshments were served and the guests voted Miss Roosa a royal entertainer. Those present were the Misses Hazel Roosa, Grace Palen, Pearl Stauble, Ruth Vredenburg, Helen Stauble and Myra Whitney and the Messrs. Claude Palen, Leonard Lockwood, Lawrence Baker, John Stauble, Ernest Palen and Aubrey Arnet.

The series of dances, which are being conducted every Saturday evening at Griffiths's Hall on Hasbrouck avenue, under the auspices of the Blue Ribbon Club, continue to attract large crowds, and that the dance this coming Saturday night will be well attended is a foregone conclusion. That the dances being held by the club have reached a high degree of social prominence is evidenced by the fact that many were present from Saugerties, Catskill, Rosendale and other nearby towns on the occasion of their last affair. It was the general opinion of those present that the club had amply fulfilled its promise of "a good time to all present," and a vast amount of satisfaction was manifested by those present at the announcement that the club members had decided to continue the dances for an indefinite period. The success that is being attained by the Blue Ribbon-benches is well merited, as it has always been the motto of the club to give its patrons the best regardless of the time or expense expended in order to secure success for their enterprises. The dancing will start promptly at 8 o'clock and will continue until midnight. The music for the occasion will be furnished by McLean's popular orchestra of this city.

Mystic Baseball Club Dance.

The dance which is to be given by the Mystic baseball team of this city, Thursday, March 2, at Pythian Hall, promises to be one of the most successful dances of the season, as the tickets are selling rapidly and everybody seems to be talking about it. A well-known orchestra of this city will furnish the music and the most popular pieces will be played.

Tonight the Night

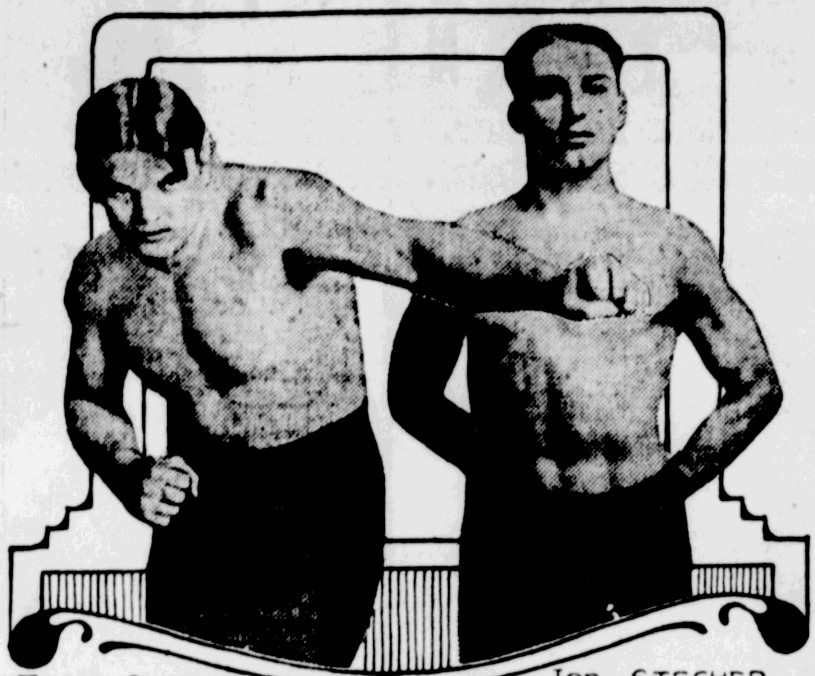

To come to the Black and White Ball and see the strangest, most fantastically costumed dance you ever dreamed of. From the first roll of the drums at 9 o'clock, which heralds in the Monday Evening Club, till the last strains of Home Sweet Home in the wee small hours you will be glad you came; for the club plans to give every one a splendid time; first, with the entertainment, which consists of fancy dancing and an extravaganza done in pantomime to appropriate music; next with the general dancing to an excellent orchestra, and last, with supper served by Mrs. Daley. Everything included in the price of the admission ticket. Added to that the sense of satisfaction you will feel at having aided a very worthy cause and you have all the ingredients of a successful dance.

Birthday Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Crane most delightfully entertained a gathering of a number of relatives and friends at their new home at 13 East Strand, they having recently moved from Sleightsburgh. It was also the 59th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Crane. During the afternoon and evening singing, dancing and amusements were indulged in. Some of the latest as well as the old-time dances were danced. Mr. Crane being an old civil war veteran, told many reminiscences of his life while in battle between the north and south. He carries many scars in remembrance of the great conflict. A most bounteous dinner was partaken of and in the center of the dining table was a large birthday cake with the inscription on it, 59th Birthday. Those attending voted Mr. and Mrs. Crane most loyal entertainers.

DEVELOPER OF GOTCH DENIES STECHER YARN

FRANK GOTCH

JOE STECHER

Emil Klank of Chicago, who looks after the interests of Frank Gotch, has received a letter from Farmer Burns, discoverer and developer of Frank Gotch as a world's champion possibility, in which this veteran denies he taught Joe Stecher the mat game.

Burns says he had read in the paper at times that he had taught Stecher how to wrestle, but declares this is all wrong.

"That is all wrong about me showing Stecher how to wrestle," says Burns, "but there is little doubt that Joe and his brother, from whom he learned a lot about the game, picked up a great deal of what they know out of my book on wrestling. I could teach both of these chaps a lot they don't know and Stecher will learn a lot of which he never dreamed if he ever hooks up with Gotch."

HOCKEY IS FAVORITE SPORT

Gaining Rapidly in Favor Throughout Country Where Ice is Available for the Game.

Riding on the crest of the present skating boom, hockey appears destined to become the premier winter sport throughout the country where either natural or artificial ice is available for the game. The installation of artificial rinks in the leading eastern and southern cities has greatly increased interest in the game in these sections, while in the North and Northwest, where temperature can be counted upon to provide ice several months each year, hockey is more popular than ever before.

This is due in part to the prominence given the sport by the colleges during the past few seasons. Hockey is now considered the major sport of the winter months at a number of leading eastern and western universities. The schedules of the teams are constantly increasing in length and importance of games, and the players as they are graduated from college continue to play for clubs either amateur or professional. International contests between the leading teams of United States and Canadian colleges or clubs no longer excite special comment although the interest in the result is keener than ever.

FRENCH FIGHTER TO RETIRE

Georges Carpentier, Famous Heavyweight, to Take Up Aviation at Termination of War.

Georges Carpentier, the famous French heavyweight, is going to retire from the ring.

The boxing idol of France has announced that he would take up aviation immediately after the war.

The great fighter started to learn flying in the air shortly after the war broke out. Since then he has performed wonderful feats. Only a few weeks ago he was decorated with military cross for special work of valor.

The retirement of Carpentier will be a big loss to the ring. He was rapidly reaching the top of the ladder in the pugilistic world when the war started. In fact, he was all but matched to fight for the world's title.

Pitcher McGuillan Signs.
Pitcher George McGuillan has signed a 1916 Philadelphia contract at an increased salary.

The Great Conde.
The great military genius Conde was a precocious boy. At eight he understood Latin, and at eleven he gave out a treatise on rhetoric. When fourteen he had become thoroughly conversant with the principles of warfare and of all military tactics.

Says "Tin" Ear Shows Change in Boxing Game.

Abe Attell, former featherweight champion, says the "cauliflower" or "tin" ears carried by about nine out of every ten boxers nowadays is a sign of a change in the style of fighting, or rather, a change in the style of not fighting.

"In the old days men stood more erect and picked off punches with their hands, jumped away from them or stepped inside of them," says Attell. "Now they bore in, head down or sideways, and stop punches with their heads. A rap on the ear causes the blood to coagulate, and a puffed-up listener is the result."

LITTLE PICK-UPS OF SPORT

Rock Island is the Poland of baseball. The Central association now controls it.

Motor car owners may like the anti-skid tire, but they are all strong for a skidding gasoline price.

The Sioux City club of the Western league has re-engaged Pitcher Harry Gaspar as team manager.

When Frank Gotch meets Joe Stecher he will rely on sheer strength while Joe will use the scissors. There's a difference.

The New York Yacht club syndicate may take over the controlling interest of the Herreshoff shipbuilding yards at Bristol, R. I.

Duke Kahanamoku, the famous Hawaiian swimmer, may come here this summer to swim at the Illinois Athletic club.

Ralph Volpert of the Pittsburgh Athletic association created a new record by swimming 150 yards backstroke in 2:00.35.

The San Jose race track of California may be cut up into building lots. The Woodland track, another famous course, is also on the market.

Women will be permitted to contest in the 1916 Grand American trapshooting handicap, which will be held in St. Louis, beginning on August 20.

Having failed to show anything in the way of weekday baseball, New York is trying to get permission to try the Sunday article.

"Three Cleveland players released," says a headline. We would say "released" is a better word than "released."

Baltimore is to get a taste of big league ball after all. The Braves will play two spring exhibition games there.

Age, however, should be no barrier to fighting if a fellow has been married. He ought to be shifter and a better dodger.

Johnny Ertle's manager must be a great detective. He can find more unheard-of boxers for Johnny to knock out than any other manager in the game.

"Connie Mack will sink or swim with youngsters," says a news item. He sank with them last season, but may be he can keep his head above water this year.

POSTAGE STAMPS

Study Their Backs and You May Come Across a Prize.

TWO CLASSES OF MARKINGS.

One of These is Accidental and the Other is Intentional, but Either Adds to the Interest of the Specimen—A Curious Nicaraguan Issue.

It really is interesting to study the things which may be found upon the backs of stamps. One might group these into two classes—accidental and intentional. In the first class would come "double printings" and "offsets." In this instance by double printings we refer to those stamps which were accidentally printed upon both sides of the paper. These are very rare. By offset we mean where too much ink was used or the sheets laid upon each other while too wet, so that the color from the face of one sheet came off on the back of the one next to it.

These double impressions and offsets are found in the surcharging of stamps as well as in the original printings. Offsets are comparatively common and vary very much in intensity of color and completeness of design. In the early stamps of Great Britain the color of the stamp has changed the gum, or perhaps the paper, to a beautiful blue, and, as there was little or no color on the portrait in the design, this head appears in white upon a blue background on the back of the stamp. This is called an "ivory head" and is very interesting.

Before we take up the matter of what is intentionally placed on the backs of stamps we might say that the paper upon which such stamps are printed usually shows best from the back. It may, of course, be either thin or thick, white or colored partially or completely through. It may have silk threads here and there like the United States revenues first issues on silk paper or silk all through like the later issues (1873) revenues, or it may be "granite" paper, like certain stamps of Austria, Switzerland and Japan.

Again, there may be embedded in the paper silk threads running the whole length of the sheet, as in certain issues of Bavaria, Wurttemberg and especially Switzerland, where threads of many colors may be found.

In considering what is intentionally placed on the backs of stamps we notice first the gum. This can easily be found in many shades—white, yellowish brown, dark brown, pink or rose. Some of the old German states especially have a fondness for pink gum.

The second thing to look for, intentionally placed on the backs of stamps, is something in the nature of a protection against cleaning or counterfeiting. Under this head would come grills or embossings. Excellent illustrations of these are found on our own stamps and again in those of Peru. Watermarks, while not placed on the backs of stamps, show much more plainly there and may be included in one's collection of "backs."

As a protection against counterfeiting, one may call attention to the numerals upon the backs of the early issues of Greece, for there are many errors and varieties to be found in these old Grecian stamps. Mexico protects some of her stamps by printing across the backs a line of blue moire, an irregular arrangement of curved lines. Sweden about 1880 commenced printing on the backs of her postage stamps a small blue picture of a post horn. This practice was continued some years.

As a protection against counterfeiting and also as a means of identifying stolen stamps Spain employs a set of serial numbers. The postoffice department keeps a list of the numbers on the backs of the stamps shipped to every postoffice, so that if one of these is robbed the authorities know and can identify, if found, the stolen stamps by the numbers they bear.

Thirdly, we consider those stamps where the printing on the backs was intentional, but placed there for other reasons than to prevent counterfeiting. In some respects these are the most interesting of all. We wish to call attention to three special instances. Portugal in 1895 issued a series of stamps commemorating the seven hundredth anniversary of the birth of St. Anthony of Padua. There are four designs in the series. But what interests us in this connection is the curious fact that upon the back of each stamp there is printed in tiny blue letters a Latin prayer. This series was also surcharged for use in the Azores.

When we study Nicaragua we are bewildered by the multiplicity of surcharges, especially after about 1900. But in 1911 matters came to a very bad pass. There were no more postage stamps, so the government took some revenue stamps, already once surcharged, and upon the backs of these revenue stamps printed a surcharge which made them good for postage. So here are revenue stamps with postage stamps on their backs, or postage stamps with surcharged revenue stamps on their backs. Either way they are very interesting. There were three values—5, 10 and 15 centavos—so made. New Zealand furnishes us another type of interesting backs. Here we find a canny postoffice department coining an honest penny by selling the space upon the backs of its stamps for advertising purposes. The stamps of the issue 1882-91 may be found telling the merits of breakfast foods, patent medicines, soaps, etc. A complete collection would contain a good many varieties. We do not know how many.—St. Nicholas.

How to Mend China Not Smashed in Too Many Pieces.

A splendid cement for china is made as follows: Into a thick solution of gum arabic and water stir thoroughly plaster of paris until the mixture is of the consistency of cream. Apply with a brush to the broken edges of the china and join together. In three days the article cannot be broken in the same place. The whiteness of the cement also adds to its value.

How to Have an Attractive Bit of Greenery All Winter.

Have you ever grown a fern leaf? This Japanese novelty is very attractive. It can be grown in a pot, but is prettier hanging from a string. It must be thoroughly soaked for an hour before hanging it up. Repeat this treatment every other day and never allow it to become perfectly dry.

How to Clean the Tiles That Are Smudgy and Dull.

Often the tiles in a hearth become so stained that water will not clean them. Try rubbing them with a piece of flannel soaked in turpentine; then wash them with a dry cloth. The tiles will then look fresh and new.

A Transfusion

By EUNICE BLAKE

George Dobbins enlisted in London for the pan-European war, went to the front and was severely wounded. Removed to a hospital in rear of the fighting lines, he lingered between life and death. His family were wealthy and willing to spend any amount of money to insure his recovery. An effort was made to secure the services of a surgeon to go to Belgium and give his special attention to pulling through the son and brother. Every surgeon in England who had not gone to the front had more than he could do at home. Miss Amelia Dobbins, George's sister, was engaged to an investigator in the British institution for physical investigation. She begged him to go with her to her brother, and the appeal coming from the woman he loved won him over.

When a man's mind is running in a given line it is difficult to divert it. Surgeon Blake had for some time been investigating the subject of transfusion of blood. He had not only been successful in operations of the kind, but had begun to endeavor to search for results accruing from different kinds of blood injected into different kinds of animals. He had replaced the blood of a man with that of an orang outang, and the patient had developed a propensity to climb trees. A liberal and benevolent gentleman, who had received the blood of a miser had become a skindiff. These and other cases had convinced the investigator that racial peculiarities are in the blood.

As soon as Dr. Blake saw his patient, who was much enervated and very pale, he said that he needed blood and must have blood at once or he would die. It is not every one who will give his or her blood for another, and the person who was willing to give his blood for George Dobbins did not appear. His sister volunteered, and since she was a hearty young woman, the doctor did not oppose the acceptance of her offer. He had every confidence that she would assume no great risk. But to supply the blood lost by Miss Dobbins some one must spare a part of his for her supply. A young soldier who was struck with Miss Dobbins volunteered, and the operation was performed, the blood the lady gave her brother being made up to her by Charlie Hopkins.

Not long after the transfusion firing was heard at the front, and to the surprise of all Miss Dobbins rushed frantically out, approaching the firing line from the rear, seized a musket from a wounded man and, joining the colors, fought bravely. The troops, astounded at seeing a woman fighting beside them, rallied around her and under her leadership attacked the Germans in one of the trenches so vigorously that they drove them out. When the fight was over Miss Dobbins was decorated on the field.

Only Dr. Blake attributed Miss Dobbins' bravery, so unusual in a woman, to any special cause. He made inquiries as to Charlie Hopkins and learned that he was one of the bravest men in the army. The doctor was confirmed in his theory that the blood is the basis of all the different traits that flesh is heir to.

George Dobbins, after having received his sister's blood, improved rapidly and in time returned to the colors. He had enlisted as a private, but was soon promoted to be lieutenant on account of his coolness in face of the enemy. What was the astonishment of his comrades when at the first fight in which he took part after his return to the front he paled, turned and fled.

He was reprimanded by his commanding officer and informed that he must be tried for cowardice. He begged for a chance to redeem himself, asserting that the cause of his flight was that he had not sufficiently recovered from his recent confinement to stand up under fire. He was given the desired opportunity and returned to his command. But when a dash was made on the German trenches the men went over them while Dobbins' legs again carried his unwilling self to the rear.

This time a court martial was convened to try him. News of his disgrace went to England, and Dr. Blake, hearing of it, called upon George's father and announced his belief that the transfusion of blood from a woman had given his son a woman's constitutional inability to bear arms.

So great was the likeness between George and Amelia that when both wore the same kind of garments they could not well be told apart. George, at the sister's suggestion feigned illness and was taken to a hospital, from whence his sister spirited him away to the coast and sent him home in woman's dress as herself. Then she applied as George Dobbins for some especially hazardous duty to redeem the lost reputation. It was granted. She stole into the enemy's lines, fired an ammunition receptacle, destroyed it and got back safely to the British lines.

An order was issued that the court martial convened to try Lieutenant George Dobbins for cowardice be dismissed, and Lieutenant Dobbins was promoted for gallant and meritorious service in the destruction of enemy's ammunition.

The real George Dobbins is at home knitting for the soldiers. Amelia Dobbins is fighting at the front, while Dr. Blake is lecturing on "The Blood, the Foundation of Our Constitutional Nature."

The Distinction.

"Pa," asked Willie, "what's the difference between an invalid and a sick person?" "An invalid, my son," answered papa, "has money."—Judge.

FACTS ABOUT LOCAL FACTORIES

Few citizens know that a metal polish is being made in Kingston by a local concern. About a year back several enterprising young men of this city purchased the formulae and business of the Sunbeam Metal Polish Company of Port Richmond, and started the manufacture of the products, which had been on the market for about fifteen years. They made known in a modest way that they were in business in this city and wanted orders, which somehow did not seem to come their way, although stores throughout the country had been selling this product for many years. They were eager to make a success of the venture but failed because they did not have a systematized salesmanship campaign.

In June S. H. Merritt of this city became interested in the project and later bought all the interests in the company, maintaining the old name. He established a factory in the Staples building on Hasbrouck avenue and set a force of men at work manufacturing the polish. Now they have several salesmen on the road selling through the eastern and New England states the products—metal polish in three forms (paste, powder and liquid), and a vulcanizing cement. These are for sale in the local stores and garages and reports from New York and other cities tell of an extensive sale. The company is planning to inaugurate an extensive advertising campaign, and expect to build up a thriving business.

R. C. Riddick, manager of the E. G. Long foundry on St. James street, reports that his 70 employees are working at full time and he expects a good season during the coming year. Mr. Riddick has been at this foundry for 38 years and is, therefore, a good judge of conditions in his branch of industry. March of last year was the last period of dullness in his foundry and was due to the general depression through the land. Several men were discharged at this time.

The main office of the E. G. Long Company is in New York city and, besides the local repairing and casting which is done at the foundry, much foreign business is obtained through this office. Most of the business comes from the brick yards, boats and cement mills in this vicinity, which have their repairing done at the foundry. Some of the repairing for the Alsen and Rosendale cement mills is done by the E. G. Long foundry, while all the castings for the Cornell Steamboat Company and U.S. & Delaware Railroad are made here. This work for the two last named concerns was transferred to the Long Company about two years ago when the Cornell foundry was closed.

The manufacturing of street railway supplies also holds an important part of the work at this foundry. The parts which are made in Kingston are shipped to the assembling plants of the car companies. Repairs for brick yard machinery are being made at this season.

Since the Peckham foundry was closed some years ago, the Long Company has received orders from companies in all parts of the world which use the street car trucks manufactured at the Peckham plant. The Long Company has the patterns for the various parts and when these become worn out, orders are placed with the local foundry to replace them.

War Helps Browne Co.
The W. G. Browne Manufacturing Company is employing 39 men at its factory on Stephen street and its products are finding good markets all over the United States, Cuba, Porto Rico, and South America. Kitchen utensils are the specialty and since England and Germany before the war sold a large amount of them in this country, American manufacturers of the same materials are replacing the foreign producers in these markets. The company now has a salesman in Cuba and Porto Rico building up a business in these countries formerly nearly monopolized by the English and Germans.

These products have an extensive sale through the country. Salesmen sent out from the local factory cover the territory east of the Rockies and the orders which they send to the factory here are self explanatory of the condition of business in this line. These salesmen sell wholesale to the various hardware stores in the country and west of the Rocky Mountains the Browne Company has no direct representatives, but their goods are handled by manufacturing representatives. They sell different lines of products and represent various manufacturers whose goods do not conflict in nature with each other.

These manufacturing representatives are not confined to this country and are busy in South America to snatch the trade formerly owned by the countries at war. Because of the prospects of increased trade with the South American nations, the West Indies, and on account of the stimulating effect of the war on all business in the United States, the Browne Company expect one of the busiest years in its history. The company is well supplied with men employees but is in need of some boys over 16 years of age. The officers of the company are E. H. Bort, president and secretary; and Thomas D. Abrams, vice president and treasurer.

The hardware products of the company are sold out of town but nickel and silver plating for local trade is one of the departments of the work done here.

Piano Parts Factory.
The piano factory of the Charles Ramsey Company is another member of the busy group of factories that has collected on the West Shore at the end of Cornell street. A force of 37 men is employed making metal parts for pianos. The output of this factory is shipped both east and west to the shops for assembling pianos. Many of the products are shipped to New York city. A period of dullness was felt for some time before last September, when business improved and it now gives promise of being very good for some time to come. Previous to the removal of the Ramsey Company from New York city to Kingston six years ago, the company was in business in New York for 14 years.

Lace Mills Always Busy.
The United States Lace Curtain

Mills on Cornell street are running on full time and employing 125—60 girls and 65 men and boys. The only effect of the war on the lace business is to raise the price of the raw materials and, consequently, the selling price of the lace itself. The curtains are made completely in the factory from spun cotton. Some of this material prior to the war was obtained from Europe while most was shipped from the southern states. Since its establishment in 1902 the factory has not closed. The goods manufactured here are shipped to salesrooms at New York city where they are sold at wholesale prices only. There are also salesmen on the road.

Furniture Factory Busy.

Twenty-five men at the Trapnaghen & Hull furniture factory on Cornell street are working at full time and although the fall is the busy time of the year in this line of business a large amount of orders is keeping the men busy. The furniture business has been very poor for several years because the people have not had the means to furnish their homes when they find it a hard task to gain only the necessities of life. As the prosperity wave increases the pay roll of the classes, they will plan to furnish their homes. Already the local furniture factory has felt the effect of this in the New England states where there is a boom in the furniture plants and other industries affected by the war. The residents of this section are receiving good pay for their labor and are investing it in their homes.

The Trapnaghen & Hull Company makes mission furniture of all kinds and restaurant tables. Their products are sold through the furniture exchange at New York city and by salesmen on the road. A large majority of the orders come from the New England states although the southern states are covered by salesmen of this company. At present they are making brush backs for the Herbert Brush Factory, whose business is rushing.

Need More Girls.

Four hundred and ten draw their pay every week at the cigar factory of G. W. Van Slyke & Horton, most of the employees being girls. About 50 of them are boys. Like the American Cigar Factory, this factory is in need of more girls and they can use 200 more, so great is the amount of business. The factory was built 8 years ago and for 5 years the employees have been working steady and at full time. The cigars are made here and shipped to Albany where they are distributed to the various dealers.

King Trucks in Demand.

"Yes, business is good," was the report at the foundry of A. R. King Manufacturing Company on Prince street. From 18 to 20 hands are employed here in making the King motor truck 3½ tons and machinery by contract. This is the 12th year of the company in Kingston, coming here from New York city. For the past four years the company has been making the King trucks, which now have an extensive sale.

WHEN TO PRUNE ORNAMENTAL PLANTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—A little early care given to the pruning of ornamental trees and shrubs during the early part of March will do much to control their growing and flowering habits, and enable the home owner to have well-formed plants and well-trained hedges or boundary plantings. The pruning of ornamental trees and shrubs is, in fact, one of the first duties that may profitably be performed in the home garden. The amateur, however, should not make a ruthless assault with shears or pruning knife upon everything in his yard. Flowering trees and shrubs that bloom in the spring or early summer should not receive radical pruning at this time, according to the garden specialists of the United States department of agriculture. Of course, if on these plants there are dead or weak branches, these should be taken out, and any crossing limbs that are rubbing and seriously interfering with the growth of the bush should be removed. The tips of the limbs, however, should not be cut off nor should any young wood that does not interfere with the growth of the bush be removed. It must be borne in mind that the blossom buds for this year's flowering were formed last year, and every shoot removed takes off that much of the prospective blossoms.

Trees and shrubs that bear their flowers in midsummer and which were not pruned in the fall may be pruned at this time. Plants of this sort are the Rose of Sharon and the shrubby hydrangea. Where the largest possible mass is desired, these plants should be pruned but little. If the aim is to secure the largest possible trusses or blossom heads, last year's growth should be pruned back to two or three eyes to a stem. Such severe pruning, however, is not conducive to the most attractive development of shrubs.

Various roses should not be pruned at this time except for the removal of surplus or interfering branches. Every bit of wood removed now reduces the amount of bloom the plant will bear during the coming season. Roses used in border planting should be treated in exactly the same way as other shrubs, except that many of these species will be improved by having all their old wood cut away once in every five or six years. This would mean cutting all the old canes off within three or four inches of the ground and forcing the bush to throw up entirely new growth. Roses used for cut flowers, like the hybrid perpetuals, the hybrid teas, and teas, should be severely pruned. The hybrid perpetuals may be cut as soon as freezing weather is past. Pruning of the hybrid teas and teas, however, should be left until the young growth has started. In both cases the plant should be cut to within six inches or one foot of the ground. Four or six eyes to a stem is about the proper amount of wood to leave.

THE CONTRARY COW.

Charley Decker of Rondout Has an Exciting Journey.

"Cows is cows but blank-blank a cow that won't go the way you want, it to," said Charley Decker Thursday afternoon as the cow he was leading attempted to pull him off the dock. This all leads up to the fact that Charley went to Esopus that morning to secure a cow for Alex Bahl of Rondout. He got the cow and tied a rope about her neck and then started for Rondout. Well to say the least Charley had some time and it will be a long while before he will lead another cow said he, as he applied arnica to his bruised legs and arms. The cow and Charley covered the distance between Esopus and the Sleighsborough ferry in record time. The cow led by several lengths and Charley was winded by the time he got her safely aboard the good ship Skillypot. The glimpse the animal had of the icy water was the only thing that prevented the cow and Charley attempting to leave the ferry before it docked at Rondout. When Charley attempted to lead her off the ferry the fun—not for Charley but those who witnessed it—started. The cow led Charley around Ferry street and back onto the dock of the Central Hudson Steamboat Company and but for the fact that Charley took a turn around one of the stanchions used to tie boats to the dock they would both have fallen over the dock onto the ice. And then the cow slipped on some ice and fell. Charley was "up a tree." If he left the cow to go for assistance the cow would get up and likely plunge off the dock. Finally a small boy attracted by the excitement went to Charley's aid and at his request hustled over on the Strand and secured a man to come over and watch the cow while Charley telephoned for aid. The aid came later and the cow was taken to its new home after another struggle. Charley is still bathing his bruises with arnica.

A Proposed New York Law

Says in parts:

"No food or drink, save coffee, tea and cocoa, containing any habit forming drug except alcohol, shall be sold within the State."

—From New York Journal of Commerce, Jan. 17, 1916.

This bill, recently introduced in the New York Legislature, amply attests the well-known fact that coffee, tea and cocoa contain the habit-forming drug, caffeine.

But why discriminate in favor of caffeine when it has been proven beyond a question of doubt that this subtle, habit-forming drug, sooner or later spells ill health, and frequently disaster for many coffee drinkers.

Caffeine is a powerful irritant. It disturbs the regular functioning of the vital organs, often causing headaches, biliousness, heart flutter, nervousness, insomnia, or some other symptom of caffeine poisoning.

The easy, sure way out of coffee troubles is to quit the coffee and use.

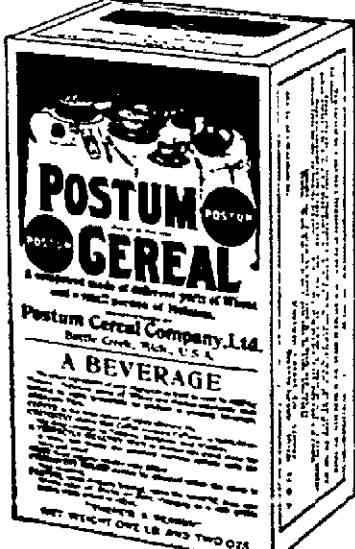

POSTUM

Made of wheat and a small portion of wholesome molasses. Postum has a rich, snappy flavour—much like that of mild Java coffee—that makes the change pleasant as well as highly beneficial; and Postum contains no drug or other harmful element.

After a few weeks on Postum and better health you'll know

"There's a Reason"

Postum comes in two forms. The original Postum Cereal must be well-boiled. Instant Postum is in soluble form; a teaspoonful in a cup, with boiling water, makes the same delicious drink—instantly. Some prefer one form, some the other, the cost per cup is about the same.

Sold by Grocers everywhere. Original Postum Cereal 15c and 25c packages.

HIGH SCHOOL
SOPHS BEAT NO. 6

Wednesday afternoon a girls' team of high school sophomores defeated the girls' team from No. 6 school by a score of 11-9.

The game was played in the high school gymnasium, and the No. 6 team should be congratulated upon doing so well on a strange court. In fact had it not been for the exceptional playing of Miss Hurley the young high school team would have been badly beaten.

Miss Seigel of the high school refereed and Miss Ruth Smith, whose efforts are turning out this promising team from No. 6 school, umpired.

The line-up of the winners was as follows:

Miss M. Kingman, c.	0	0	0
Miss Hurley, rf.	4	3	11
Miss Boyd, lf.	0	0	0
Miss E. Kingman, lg.	0	0	0
Miss Van Wagenen, rg.	0	0	0

Totals.....4 3 11

The High School Midgets are looking for more worlds to conquer and have challenged the Poughkeepsie Y. M. C. A. Boys to play them here in the high school gymnasium on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

K. OF C. TO HAVE
BASEBALL LEAGUE

Seven weeks more before the opening of the baseball season finds plans in readiness for a Hudson Valley Baseball League of the Knights of Columbus. According to reports, Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Hudson, Newburgh, Beacon, Wappingers Falls will be represented. It is the intention to have games on Saturday and Sunday with a small admission fee.

The idea is meeting with enthusiasm in the cities named and plans will be discussed at a meeting in Columbus Institute Poughkeepsie, on Sunday, March 11th. The Kingston Council had a baseball team last season that compared favorably with anything in the Hudson Valley and interest is keen for the league.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Feb. 25.—A spectacular five cornered race for pennant honors in the American League is promised by a study of the "dope" from this mid-winter angle.

The Red Sox, Yankees, White Sox, Tigers and Browns all seem to have a wonderful chance to grab off the bunting. The Senators do not size up as powerful as any one of the quintet, yet they may spring a surprise. The Athletics and Indians look no better than they did last season, when they staged a thrilling battle for the cellar championship.

The world champions probably will take the field as they lined up in 1915. There have been a number of additions to the Lannin crew since the last championship battle was fought, but none of the newcomers looks good enough to oust any of the regulars. Bill Carrigan, the managerial person, is hopeful, however, of building up a powerful secondary defense with his new talent.

Yankees Wonderfully Improved.

No team in the Johnson circuit has such a wealth of fine material as the Yankees. Reckless expenditure of money has added to the roster of the once joke ball club, some of the brightest stars that shone last year in the Federal League, American Association and International League.

The Yankee infield and outfield promise to rank among the greatest in the country. They have speed, fielding brilliance and batting power. Behind the bat, the Yanks have been fortified, while their pitching staff shows greater promise than any other club in the league. To augment the regulars of last year—Caldwell, Keating and Fischer—there are Nick Cullio, the southpaw star of the Feds; Allen Russell, who was a sensation in the International; Dan Tipple, who made a great record in the American Association; Bob Shawkey, once-time Athletic; George Mogridge, who won 24 out of 35 combats in the Western League; and a dozen others.

The White Sox surely will be in the fight. They have been strengthened where they needed it—in secondary defense—by the purchase of some real stars from the bushes. The Sox looked like world beaters last year—and for a time they did beat everything in sight. Then they dropped behind. That was because they lacked a real wallop—because their reserve force was not up to standard. This year it's different—and White Sox rooters are dreaming pennant dreams.

Watch Those Tigers.

Hughie Jennings hopes to find among his "rookies" at least two pitchers who can stand the major League gaff. If his hopes are realized those Tigers will be the team that must be beaten by the club that wins the pennant. No outfit in the country has greater offensive strength. Lack of air-tight pitching cost the 1915 pennant for the jungle-bugs. Give Jennings two young pitchers of real worth to add to his collection of veterans—and then watch those Tigers go.

The Browns size up as the greatest combination that ever represented the Missouri metropolis. The merging of the Browns of 1915 with the Soufeds has placed under the management of Fielder Jones the grandest collection of ball players that any St. Louis team has owned. Jones has enough good ball players to form two great clubs. His problem is to build the most powerful machine from the many cogs at his disposal. If he builds right—and Jones is a wizard in that line—the Browns will be up in the fight all the way.

Clark Griffith, as ever, is emitting pennant predictions. His club does not look much better than it did last year, when it never was in the running, but Griff. nurses the hope that some of his men will begin hitting and that a few of his twirlers will improve a point where they can be of material assistance to the "Human Bullet."

The "Hopeless Twins."

Connie Mack asks you all not to confine his club to last place "because we may surprise you." But Connie's timber is so green that it seems unlikely that he can build a machine within the next two or three years that will have even a fair chance for the pennant. The Athletics, in other words, ought to finish seventh—if they don't finish eighth.

And now as for the Indians. On the roster are a dozen or more likely looking youngsters. But if two of them develop into real major leaguers the Indians will be lucky, because the ratio of bushers' success in the big leagues is smaller than one in six. The Indians have not been strengthened by the purchase of major league talent. The regular team of 1915 was, at best, a mediocre outfit. Its pitching power was a minus quality; its batting strength, after Joe Jackson was sold, shrank off. In fielding the Naps were only ordinary.

Barring a miracle, the Indians won't finish better than sixth—and most likely they'll finish eighth.

FIELD OF SPORTS.

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism and Other Lines of Athletics.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 25.—The first squad of Giants will leave for the training camp at Marlin today. Eleven players will be in the squad. They will be led by Christy Mathewson.

New York, Feb. 25.—Leach Cross has sung his "Swan song." The great fighter says he is through. He will fight no more. This is final, not a "Patti retirement." Leach puts up no alibi for his recent defeat by Milburn Saylor. He simply says he is not as good as he used to be, and is going to get out of the game while his health is good.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 25.—A friendly boxing bout between William Hildebrandt and August Naisel, both aged 14, resulted in the death of Hildebrandt following a hard blow on the jaw.

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 25.—Hot Springs today showed the first symptoms of becoming a baseball training camp when the vanguard of the Brooklyn Nationals arrived. Jack Coombs was in command of the arrivals.

St. Louis, Feb. 25.—Ted Lewis knocked out Harry Trendall of St. Louis in the seventh round here last night.

Philadelphia, Feb. 25.—Alfredo de Oro lost a little of the lead he had over Charles Ellis in the three-cushion billiard championship match when the second block was finished last night. The score now stands 109 to 89. Ellis making two more points than the champion last night. The final block of 50 will be played tonight.

SHANDAKEN.

Shandaken, Feb. 24.—Mrs. Eliza Votce, widow of Jerome Votce, who died last week, was buried on Tuesday. The services were held in the M. E. Church, the Rev. D. N. F. Blakeney officiating, and was largely attended. The interment was in the Coons cemetery.

Low Woolheater, an old resident of this place, suddenly expired while seated at the table eating on Tuesday night.

The Rev. W. L. DeGross and Mrs. DeGross of Philadelphia are in town, called here by the sudden illness and death of Mr. DeGross's sister, Mrs. Votce.

Oliver Holden, an aged resident of this place, is very ill.

Miss Edith Bodley of the state normal college at Albany was suddenly called here by the illness and death of her mother, Mrs. Votce.

Owing to an embargo placed by the New York Central Railroad Company the Fulton Furniture Company are unable to dispose of their output as their products go to parts in other countries.

Mrs. E. Gildersleeve and daughter of Kingston attended the funeral of Mrs. Jerome Votce.

Three deaths have occurred in this place within a short time; all quite old people. Frank Yerry, Mrs. Jerome Votce and Low Woolheater. The winter has been real hard on the old folks.

Hiram Evans and sister, Maud, of Albany are visiting friends hereabouts.

P. O. S. A. TO RECEIVE
G. A. R. VETERANS

The Civil War Veterans in this vicinity, although they are now few in number, will be taken into the membership of Washington Camp, No. 2, Patriotic Order Sons of America, at the Wednesday night at Mechanics Hall on Henry street, at a public meeting. At the recent reunion of the veterans, applications for membership in the order were signed by all the old warriors and those who were not present at the meeting who wish to join the Sons of America members are welcome to membership in the order. The local camp has the honor of being the first one to think of this happy plan to brighten the last days of the men who fought for our nation in days gone by.

Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., will preside at the meeting and several good speakers have been engaged to deliver addresses. One of the speakers will be H. Willard Griffith, vice president of the state of New York and corporation counsel of Hempstead, L. I., who will give the history of the order commencing with the period before the Civil War. He will tell of the number of orders in both the north and south before the struggle and of their decrease in number after the strife between the two sections.

It is expected that a large attendance of the veterans, their families, and friends will be present to witness the initiation. The camp will meet at 7 while the doors will be open to the public at 7:45 o'clock. Vocal and instrumental music will be rendered and light refreshments will be served.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS FOR FARMER

Professor McNair Indorses This System of Lighting For Farm Homes. Safety and convenience are important factors to be considered by those who propose to install an improved lighting system in the home as well as in the outbuildings. With these facts in mind Professor G. B. McNair of the Kansas Agricultural college strongly indorses the electric lighting system for the farm. On this subject he says: "Twelve years ago farm lighting plants were a novelty; today they are rapidly growing in popularity. They are usually operated by a gasoline engine, but in the eastern states and especially in the Appalachian mountains it is not uncommon to see water power used for this purpose. Where the people have water power the storage battery is not used."

In every state where farmers care at all for convenience one will find a number of lighting plants. Some farmers prefer the blaugas, acetylene or gasoline lighting systems, so that they may utilize the heat, but there is a certain element of danger in using these plants.

Plants, including engine, generator, battery and switchboard, can be bought for $134 up. One must bear in mind, however, that one gets only what one pays for, consequently it may prove poor economy to buy the cheapest plant. Such plants are of very small capacity, will operate only a few lights and must be charged every day. A plant such as the average farmer owns costs about $400, which does not include the cost of installation, wiring of house, cost of fixtures and similar items. Where a farmer can buy power from a company whose line runs near his house he will find it much more economical to do this than to put in his own plant. In the first place, there is no upkeep expense on the plant, and his yearly bill from the company will not equal the interest and depreciation alone for the private plant. The average bill for light to such a user would be about $36 a year.

The housewife who has electricity on the farm does not have to bother with smoke or dirt from gas or oil lamps. She uses it for lighting her house, for drying her laundry, sewing, washing, sweeping and toasting the bread for breakfast.

The farmer finds the electric light a safe and convenient light for his barn.

Boarded Sheep Rack.
A boarded up feeding rack in the sheep lots or pens will prevent dirt and chaff from getting into the wool while the animals are feeding. Dirt of this kind in the wool is one of the reasons usually given by buyers for low prices paid. In some instances the chaff and dirt from the racks will work down into the wool, matting it near the hide and causing discomfort to the sheep as well as injury to the wool. Its use means a better looking flock and will also result in saving quite a good deal of feed that is ordinarily wasted.

The rack may be built double, giving as much feeding space on one side as the other. The double racks are best for the open lots.—Farm Progress.

Pear Orchards Profitable.
Pear orchards, where conditions are favorable, may be more profitable than an apple orchard, for the reason that pears are not so generally grown as apples. The pear delights in a clay soil and is not so apt to crop regularly on a loamy soil, and trees on the latter seem more susceptible to attacks from disease than the former.

When the orchard is first set corn can be grown with the pear trees to advantage. Cultivation should be discontinued early in July and a cover crop of vetch or clover sowed. In cultivating in orchards of any kind care must be exercised not to cultivate deeply near the trees. Late cultivation is not desirable around trees of any kind, as it encourages late growth instead of permitting the wood to harden sufficiently before winter weather sets in. As the trees grow older more fertilizer will be required. Pear trees require but light pruning each year, shortening back the new growth some, and the trees must be regularly sprayed. Where heavy crops set the fruit should be thinned, as is common with peaches.

Chatham's Errors.
Chatham, at the time of his decease, had not in both houses of parliament ten personal adherents. Half the public men of the age had been estranged from him by his errors and the other half by the exertions which he had made to repair his errors.—Macaulay.

TILLSON.
Tillson, Feb. 24.—Jesse Keator and Jesse Haines have gone to Connecticut where they both have employment. George M. Smedes has returned home after visiting friends in Samsonville for a time.

A load of young people from this place gave Arthur Geary a surprise Friday night. All had a fine time.

Mrs. J. Deyo is visiting at Abe Deyo's.

Mrs. Clarence Mertine is confined to her home by illness. Dr. Hasbrouck is attending her.

Abe Deyo has returned to work after spending a couple days with his family.

Elmer Christiansa of Albany spent a few days with his parents in this place.

Friends of Henry Myers gave him a birthday surprise Monday evening. Alex Deyo is spending some time with his family.

George M. Smedes spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Christiansa.

C. Harms is spending some time with his family.

The older members of the Sunday school are requested to meet in the hall Friday evening to prepare for the teachers' training class.

Little Talks With
Want Ad Readers

Of course, you have read of the usages of the kings and people of the ages before printing was known.
You have read how, when the king wished to issue a proclamation to the people, he sent forth heralds, or criers, who walked through all the cities and dominions ringing bells and blowing horns and reading the sovereign's will to his subjects.

This process took days and weeks before the proclamation reached the utmost boundaries of the king's dominions and often longer, if the kingdom were large.

Then, later, when printing was invented, the king's proclamations were printed and sent by courier through all the kingdom and nailed up in the market places where the people could read them.

Merchants and business and professional men of all kinds soon began to see the value of this sort of advertising and used it as much as possible to advertise their wares and needs and businesses.

But printing, being in its infancy, this was very costly advertising and could only be used by the very rich—and even by them most sparingly.

But, gradually, printing became cheaper and the newspaper was instituted and then advertising became more general, but even at this time it was expensive and so window signs and placard work was resorted to very generally.

But, later on, there came that great boom to business men and women and, in fact, to the great masses of the people generally—
The Want Ad. At first it was laughed at, like all great things at first, but little by little, people began to see its possibilities and started using it.

The result is seen today in the Want Columns of any newspaper—you pick up. Hundreds and thousands of people are advertising their needs and wants through the medium of the Want Columns every day.
The lesson for you is that, if you are not already a daily reader and frequent user of the Want Ads, you had better get busy at once and become one, for it is the most up-to-date and efficient and reasonably priced form of advertising there is.

MIDGETS DEFEAT ARROW FIVE

Another team aspiring for the Midget basketball championship of this locality was trailed in the dust by the high school Midgets in a game in the gymnasium Thursday afternoon, the high school lads winning from the Arrow Five the one-sided score of 47 to 22. The Arrows showed cause to name themselves thusly by their speed but it was mostly individual, and as a result their opponents' superior team work won out.

Eleven basketballers were used by the Midgets and they all are about on the same level in basketball skill. This little competition between the members of the team for berths as regulars spurs the players to their best form. Ryan was the best shot for the Arrows, while Martin faded out for his team, sinking 8 field goals in the basket while he was in the lineup. The score:

JOE WOOD. GIANTS MAY SIGN JOE WOOD.

New York, Feb. 25.—"Smoky Joe" Wood, the once famous pitcher of the Boston Red Sox, is now in New York and is looking for a job and rumor has it that he may be signed by the Giants.

"At present my arm appears to be all right," Wood says. "But I don't know how it will be when I try to cut it loose at a batter. Personally I think I can pitch just as well as ever, but it is evident that the Red Sox thought I was slipping or the management would not have asked for waivers. I am anxious to get with some good team and try my arm out. If it isn't right I will be the first to ask release. If my pitching days are over I want to quit and get in some other line of endeavor. I want to be certain, though. I have had no information at all as to what will become of me as the time is getting close I would like to know."

BURMA'S COLOSSAL BUDDHA

This Statue Is Said to Be the Largest in the World.

The largest monument of the human form existing in the east today, if not in the world, is the great reclining statue of Buddha near Pegu, in Burma, around which the government erected a building with lattice steel pillars to protect it from the elements. This colossal was brought to light during the construction of the railway that runs northeast from Rangoon to Mandalay.

While the permanent way was being banked up to protect the lines from occasional floods the engineer in charge required for the purpose of his work a harder ballast than the alluvial deposit over which the line was running could give him. Less than a mile away was a tree clad mound, and here, it was thought, suitable material might be found. The task of clearing away some of the trees took but an hour or so, and then shafts were sunk to find the needed stone. Before the diggers had gone down more than a yard they struck an enormous and fairly preserved figure of Gautama.

In actual length the statue is 180 feet and fifty feet high at the shoulder. The figure and its pedestal are of brick, covered with plaster. Since its discovery the plaster has been removed and painted over, the box at the head and the finger nails gilded and the headless decorated with glass jewels. The statue is thought to be about 500 years old, but no one knows its history, no reference whatever being made to it in Burmese legends or traditions.—Wide World Magazine.

TRAPPING A PYTHON.

The Monster Is a Victim of His Own Greedy Appetite.

The python's weak point is its stomach; it is a glutton. Not satisfied with a full supper, it will start at once on next week's breakfast if by chance that future meal happens to be within easy reach.

A python generally lives in a hole in the ground or a hollow in a tree, but if it can find an old ruin in the jungle—and there are many old ruins in India—it likes to take up its sleeping quarters there, because even in the heaviest rains the water runs off the ruins quickly, whereas a hole in the ground is likely to be flooded. The python needs to eat only once a week, and to get that meal it lies flat along the bough of a tree near a stream and waits for its prey to come to drink.

When the natives see the long trail that the python's body makes near the bank and find a heap of ruins near by they make a hole in the ruined wall just exactly big enough for the python to get through. Then they tie a pig to a stake near the hole on one side of the wall, and on the other side of the wall opposite the hole they tie another pig to a stake. They also tie a wire to the leg or the tail of the near side pig, and as evening draws on they twist it from a distance, and the pig squeals. As the python comes home to bed it hears the squeals.

So the python comes along merrily and seizes its supper at a single bite. Down goes the pig into the big snake's throat, sucked in slowly by sheer muscular action. In about half an hour the pig has passed completely down the long neck, and in another half hour it is down a couple of yards farther into the python's stomach.

Most animals would go to sleep right away after a gorge like that. But meanwhile the second pig on the other side of the wall has realized its unhappy brother's woeful fate and has set up a most distressing noise. The python puts its head through the hole and sees it.

"Ah!" it says to itself. "Here's my next week's breakfast!" And instead of waiting for next week to come that greedy python swallows the second pig too. The wily natives wait until the second pig is well on its way down the python's body; then they have the snake caught. Pig No. 1 prevents it from advancing, and pig No. 2 prevents it from retreating. The natives lasso the python around the neck, break down the wall and pass a coil of rope between the two

HOLMES GOES BACK AS STEAMER PURSER

Gordon A. Holmes, proprietor of the Mansion House on lower Broadway for the past year, has accepted a position as purser on one of the coast line steamers of the United Fruit Company, and left this morning for New York city to assume his duties. His boat sails from New York for Panama on Saturday. Mr. Holmes was a purser on one of the coast line steamers of another company before he resigned to take up the management of the Mansion House.

Mr. Holmes's lease does not expire until the last of the month, and the hotel will be kept open by his employees until that time when the property will be taken over by the owner, Mrs. Von Beck, who it is understood will continue the management of the hotel.

Mr. Holmes during his residence in this city made a number of friends by his genial personality and character.

SAVE MONEY BY TRADING AT Lay's Saturday Sale

"What's your husband's income?" asked an inquisitive woman of a friend at our market the other day. "Oh, generally about 2 a. m." was the answer, which illustrates just how seriously a certain class of married women consider a subject which should, under no circumstances, be regarded in the light of a jest. It is the husband's income that in 99 out of 100 cases pays the household expenses—which provides food, clothing, heat, light and shelter—and in about 50 per cent of the instances referred to women are reckless in their expenditures, especially when buying meats. They "fall for" the bait thrown out by a certain class of marketmen who offer quantity instead of quality in order to create low prices, and meats bought of them are expensive at any price because they frequently are unfit for consumption. Why not apply a small portion of the husband's income to buying high-grade meats such as we cut and save money in doing so? Try it here Saturday and see how much further you will be ahead.

Honest Food Values at Planthaber's Saturday

Our values, methods and specially reduced prices for Saturday are legitimate and honest. We are not endowed with sublime intelligence, but we have a clear vision of what we wish to do for our customers, and we have a determined will to see that none are disappointed. Drop into this market any Saturday during the rush hours and note the satisfied air of the week-end shoppers. They know that at no market in the city will a dollar go farther than it does here. They also know that real values are always what we give, and housewives appreciate our effort to keep food prices down.

NEW YORK WOULD CLEAR WATERSHED

Under Gaze of Protecting its Water Supply the Wagner Bills Would Depopulate Large Sections of Westchester and Ulster Counties.

Pollution of the Croton and Ashokan watersheds by the erection of correctional institutions on the lands embraced within such sections is at issue in bills introduced in the state senate by Senator Wagner on Thursday before a joint session of the senate finance committee and the assembly ways and means committee, who considered at the same time bills introduced by Senator Slater providing that the city of New York shall reimburse the counties affected for their losses sustained through the operation of the bills, and also that the city of New York establish a filtering plant so that sewage from two contemplated institutions in the Croton watershed cannot contaminate the city's water supply.

Primary Objects of the Bills.
The Wagner bills were drawn primarily to regulate sewage and prevent pollution of the Croton watershed, and especially affect the construction of two correctional institutions which it is proposed to erect in Westchester county, but they are sufficiently comprehensive to embrace Ulster county also, for which reason the supervisors' legislative committee, accompanied by County Attorney John W. Eckert, journeyed to Albany and attended the hearing.

Sewage of Six Thousand People.
The institutions which the state of New York proposes to erect in Westchester county are the New York Training School for Boys and the Mohawk State Hospital, which will have over 6,000 inmates and attendants at the start, and will produce, according to evidence submitted to the senate and assembly committees, over half a million gallons of sewage daily. It is proposed to erect the schools on opposite sides of Mohawk Lake, which lies seven and a half miles distant from Croton Lake and at an elevation of 280 feet above it.

The Alternatives.
The state of New York has purchased sites for the two institutions. In the case of the Training School for Boys, work has already advanced until $350,000 has been expended. The insane asylum has not yet been built, but the site cost over $137,000. Senator Wagner's bills provide for abandoning these sites and building the institutions elsewhere, on the ground that the sewage from the institutions, after passing through disposal plants, will flow into the sources of the Croton water supply. The Slater bills provide the alternatives of a filtering plant to be erected by the city of New York, at an estimated cost of $9,000,000, or payment of consequential damages in the event of the two institutions being taken out of the watershed.

Filtration Attacked As Inadequate.
The successful operation of filtration plants was attacked by experts of the city of New York, who contend that no filtration plant can be constructed which can be relied upon, that sewage from correctional institutions is more dangerous than other sewage, and that since it has been established that germs remain alive after traveling for eighteen hours over eighty miles of distance, the danger of pollution from the two institutions, which would be carried from Mohawk Lake to Croton Lake in six hours' time, is real and not imaginary.

Filtration Plants Not Dependable.
Experts have been employed by those who favor the removal of the institutions from the Croton watershed, as well as by those who favor their being allowed to remain there. The experts do not agree on what the results will be. Advocates of allowing the institutions to remain claimed that a proper filtration plant can be erected, with a pumping station and pipe line to the Hudson river, opponents of the institutions being located in the watershed submitted statements that all sewage disposal plants are subject to breakdowns, and largely dependent for their successful operation on the use of chlorine, which on account of its deadly qualities is used in trench warfare in Europe and therefore is handled shirkingly by unskilled attendants who become fearful of its effects on themselves.

Westchester Fears Depopulation.
The Merchants' Association of New York, and officials of that city, appeared in favor of the bills which would prevent completion of the institutions at Mohawk Lake, together with representatives of a number of New York city civic associations and organizations; the provisions of the bills which would exclude the erection of buildings in the watersheds were opposed by representatives of Westchester, Ulster, Putnam and Greene counties, which are most directly affected.

Senator Slater of Westchester predicted that the Wagner bills, if passed, would depopulate his county and were intended for that purpose, and that the removal of the institutions would be followed by an attempt to remove county institutions and eventually the dwellings on the watershed.

The Three Wagner Bills.
Of the three bills introduced by Senator Wagner, the first would prevent the Croton watershed from pollution through an amendment of the public health law by prohibiting the location and construction of an institution for the treatment or care of persons affected with mental or other diseases or for correctional or charitable purposes, upon territory in Westchester, Putnam and Dutchess counties drained by the Croton river or its tributaries above the new Croton dam, which territory is known as the Croton watershed. The location of such an institution, the bill further provides, may be restrained on suit of the state commissioner of health, the board of health of the city of New York, or of any person residing within such territory, but the provisions of the bill shall not apply to an institution or building needed for the enforcement of police regulations or for protection against fire, to school houses or to research laboratories of the state department of health.

Positively The Most Sensational Offer Ever Made

A $2.50 Sweeper for 98c

NOTE—You will recall that at our sale of these Hygeno Sweepers last December many people were unable to take advantage of the offer because our allotment of 200 was exhausted.

The Hygeno Company delivered their second shipment last week, and the big sale begins Saturday.

Ask Your Neighbor How She Likes the Hygeno

Understand Fully What This Means

Here is a carpet sweeper that should retail in the neighborhood of $2.00 because it will do—and do well—exactly what a good carpet sweeper should.

It is light in weight and strong—it is perfectly sanitary—it harbors no germs.

It is all metal, enameled in mahogany grain and nickel plated trimming.

It is fitted with best brittle brush and "easy clean" pans. The wheels are rubber-tired and spring set, thus allowing the brush to get close to the carpet and pick up the smallest particles of dirt. Elastic webbing prevents scratching the furniture, and a metal cap socket prevents the handle from coming loose.

A sweeper like the "Hygeno" is needed in every home, because it is more sanitary than the broom, and, being built of steel, will last for years.

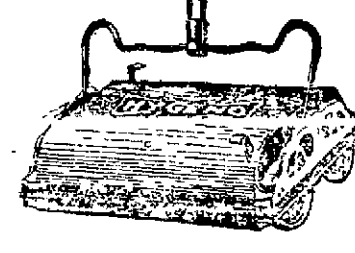

You will note the easy running of the "Hygeno" and how strongly it is built.

Note—So as to give everyone an opportunity of owning one of the Sweepers—only one sold to a customer.

Lost and Found

Story of a Bridgroom With Dramatic Tastes

By CLARISSA MACKIE

When Robert Dwight married Mildred Corson every one said that they would be happy if Dwight did not go on the stage, for which he had a strong leaning. Mildred was very much in love with him, and it was feared that if he was separated from her, to be surrounded by actresses, not only would she be jealous, but he might be tempted to leave her in the lurch.

They were married early in February, intending to go south to meet the summer coming north. A large number of friends saw them joined, peited them with rice and old shoes, and they were driven to the dock from which they were to sail. On boarding the ship they found their stateroom a mass of flowers sent to them by their friends. In two or three days they found themselves in Jacksonville, Fla.

To Mildred Dwight, who had been a lovely little stenographer when Robert fell in love with and married her, this tedious life of the well to do was a delightful experience.

Robert Dwight was far from poor, his business was a prosperous one, and there was no economizing during this wedding trip. And, best of all, there was waiting for them in New York a luxuriously furnished apartment which was to be home.

No wonder the Dightons were blissfully happy, and it is not surprising that on this winter morning Mildred looked from her hotel window into a summer land of tropical flowers and singing birds and decided that this was heaven indeed.

Robert had gone out to buy some cigars at a queer little tobacco shop at the end of a crooked street, and when he returned they were going for a long drive under the palms.

Mildred glanced at the clock. Robert had been gone over an hour, and the motorcar was waiting below.

Another hour ticked away and thirty minutes more.

After the manner of brides, Mildred became alarmed over the long absence of her loved one, and, twisting a white chiffon veil over her little hat, she went out to look for him. She knew the way to the tobacco shop, and she soon reached the crooked street.

Her heart sank when she saw that down its length were an unusual number of people.

Had anything happened to Robert? She moved through the crowd, not daring to ask for fear of the answer she might receive, and she had nearly reached the end of the street and the shop when something happened—something that shattered her beautiful bubble of happiness and ended that most blissful of honeymoons.

Mildred saw Robert coming out of the tobacco shop. He paused in the doorway to light a cigarette. How handsome he looked in his well fitting white flannels, with a white hat set back on his dark hair! He tossed the match away and glanced up the street. His face brightened into radiance; his eyes glowed with excitement and love's ardor.

Mildred thought he saw her, but he was looking at another woman, a woman who was running down the opposite pavement. Nay, she was only a slight young girl, exquisitely lovely and evidently in deep distress.

As she ran toward Robert he advanced to meet her with outstretched hands. The cigarette he had tossed aside performed a blinding parabola and fell at Mildred's feet. But she did not see it.

Her anguished eyes saw nothing save the clad look in Robert's face and the joy of the girl as she flew into his waiting arms.

"Tom!" cried Robert.

Mildred saw no more. She fled back along the crooked street, with a wildly beating heart and an insane desire to reach home.

Did any woman ever have such an odd ending to a honeymoon?

An hour later she left the hotel with her trunk and handbag, and what excuse she made to the clerk it does not know, but there was no message for Robert Dwight when he came home at last to find her gone.

Six months later and it was summer time in New England. Mildred Dwight had resumed her maiden name of Mildred Corson and had obtained a responsible position in one of the large manufacturing of a Connecticut city.

As Miss Corson she acceptably filled her position and won her way into the hearts of her fellow clerks. Not one of them knew of the tragedy which had blighted her honeymoon, nor did one of them guess that Mildred had ever been a bride.

She found a pleasant boarding place and congenial friends. In the city were several good theaters and an occasional concert.

Still Mildred was very unhappy. She fired her husband, and, although the newspapers had told her that Robert was making a worldwide search for the vanished bride, she maintained silence toward those who had known her in the past.

There came a Saturday in August with its customary half holiday from work. Mildred had spent a quiet afternoon in her own room, and after the evening meal one of her new acquaintances, Mrs. Fields, came with an invitation to attend one of the open air moving picture theaters.

Mildred rather liked the silent drama, so, clad in dainty white gown, the two girls entered the enclosure and found seats near the front.

Overhead the stars were shining, and outside the enclosure was the hum of city street traffic. The orchestra was unusually good, and Mildred found herself strangely stirred when the violins drifted into McDowell's beautiful "To a Wild Rose."

The orchestra had played the melody during their first meal in that Florida hotel, and it brought back painful memories of her brief spell of happiness.

Then the title of the play was flashed on the screen.

"Lost and Found."

With the first picture came a realistic sense of looking upon familiar scenes. Surely, surely this was the sunny south and the quaint streets those of Jacksonville.

And the girl!

Mildred almost arose from her seat and cried out with surprise as she recognized the lovely face of the heroine as that of the woman who had flown to Robert's arms. So Robert's sweetheart was an actress!

One scene after another flashed before her vision, melting into a whole, which brought her, trembling and incredulous, to the moment when she found herself gazing down the crooked little street of the tobacco shop.

Then she saw her own slender figure and white veiled face looking toward the shop from which her husband, Robert, was emerging, lighting a cigarette. The entire scene was repeated, incident for incident. He tossed away the match, glanced up the street, became eager, alert, tenderly smiling, lunged away his cigarette and advanced with outstretched arms to meet the heroine's graceful flying form.

Robert in the moving picture! Why, how had it happened?

All the way home she was asking herself the question, and through the darkness of her perplexity and doubt came one ray of light. During his college days Robert had been one of the college players and was considered a talented amateur actor.

"I am glad he married the girl," sighed Cora as they reached Mildred's door.

"Yes," said Mildred absently, "but he was married before that."

"Who was married before?" asked Cora, puzzled.

"Why, Robert, of course."

"But there was no Robert. His name was Arthur."

"I am stupid tonight," was Mildred's only explanation as she parted from her friend.

The next day Mildred obtained leave of absence and in her straightforward way went directly to New York and called at her husband's office.

She was trembling like a leaf when she was shown into Robert's private office.

He stared at her as one looks at the newly risen dead. His face was thin and worn and his brown hair sprinkled with gray.

"Robert!" she said meekly and then promptly fainted away. When she opened her eyes she was lying on the leather couch, and Robert was on his knees bending over her. His eyes were tender and anxious.

"Can you ever forgive me?" was her first cry.

"Yes, dearest," he said generously.

"But tell me what happened to send you away from me that day? I have searched land and sea for you, and I had given you up for dead when you appeared before me."

In a few broken sentences Mildred told her husband of her surprise and jealousy that day in Jacksonville and how when she was assured of his pardon she had taken a train for the north and disappeared. Then the motion picture play on the screen had thrown a ray of light on the matter.

Robert's explanation made that ray a brilliant light of understanding which cleared up the mystery which had parted bride and groom for almost a year.

"You remember I told you I always acted in our college theatricals," he reminded her, "and many of my friends had urged me to enter the profession. But I did not seriously consider it and only now and then banked to tread the stage."

"But that morning in Jacksonville I started down to the tobacco shop with only one thought in my mind—to get back to you. As I turned into the street I met my old friend of college days, Jack Budlong, president of our Players' club. He was glad to see me and tearing his hair insanely over the fact that his star performer had come down with the measles that very morning."

"Budlong fell upon me like a long lost brother and pleaded with me to take the part of the measles one. So I did, and when I reached the hotel, full of my experiences and with Miss Gray and Budlong accompanying me to meet the only woman in the world, why, my wife had vanished without a word. So you believed that I was false to you?"

Mildred's punishment had been great, indeed, and she humbly acknowledged her lack of faith. "But how was I to know?" she asked pitifully.

Robert smiled wisely.

"In great love there is no faltering of faith," he gently reminded her as he drew her face to his shoulder. "As the man in the play lost and found his sweetheart, so I lost my wife and have found her."

"With a greater love for you and unwavering faith," finished Mildred.

These great cathedrals of the earth, with their gates of rocks, pavements of clouds, choirs of stream and stone, stars of snow, and vaults of purple covered by the continual stars—

Good Workmanship.

Customer—"You know that coat I bought of you? Well, when I buttoned it the first time it split down the back." Clothing Dealer—"Indeed! It must be, then, that the buttons were sewed on too strongly."

FOR EARLY SPRING.

So Modish is This Costume of Such Quaint Lines.

A NEW MODEL.

Cut of tan silk poplin with a full skirt and a flared basque-like coat, this suit is springy as possible. All shades of tan are now good style. A picturesque effect is gained by the smocking around the frilled collar and the narrow velvet ribbon-banding. The cuffs and buttons are also novel.

FOUR DUMPLINGS.

A Run on These Appetizers So Seasonable For Winter.

Chicken Dumplings.—Mix and sift three level teaspoonsful of baking powder and one-half a level teaspoonful of salt with two cupsful of flour. Add sufficient milk to make a soft dough. Roll lightly on a floured board and cut into small biscuits. Place on a greased plate in a steamer and cook twenty minutes. Do not move or uncover the steamer while the dumplings are cooking. Do not start to make the dumplings until the chicken is tender. It can wait, but not the dumplings.

Suet Dumplings.—One cupful of finely chopped beef suet, one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of black pepper, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt. Mix well together and add enough cold water to make as thick as biscuit dough. Roll out and cut with a biscuit cutter or knife, drop into boiling water and cook for one-half-hour, drain and serve hot. Serve with roast meat, or the dumplings may be slightly browned in the oven after boiling. They are also good added to a meat stew.

Liver Dumplings.—Chop one-half pound of liver and one-fourth pound of bacon, uncooked, as fine as possible. Beat two eggs lightly and add one-fourth cupful of butter to them. Then add the meat, the seasonings of chopped parsley, white herbs, salt and pepper, and one and one-half cupfuls of breadcrumbs, adding more breadcrumbs if necessary. This will depend on the softness or dryness of the crumbs, and on the size of the eggs. The mixture should be just stiff enough to make a paste which can be formed into balls. Divide into portions, roll smoothly in the hands and poach in boiling water before boiling, cooking about fifteen minutes.

Potato Dumplings.—Grate four cold boiled potatoes and add to them one cupful of stale breadcrumbs soaked in a little milk, just enough to moisten. Also one cupful of breadcrumbs crisped in a little butter or drippings. Add two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of flour and seasoning of salt, pepper and nutmeg. Form into medium sized balls and steam or boil twenty minutes. Turn on to a serving dish and sprinkle with the remaining fried breadcrumbs.

No Pins or Sewing.

Here's a good way to save both time and labor and yet enable one to always have a clean ironing sheet at home: Take a length of factory cotton a little longer than the ironing board. If the board is of ordinary width one length will make two sheets or a change. Hem each side with small pieces of tape, attach small brass rings (such as are used for stocking bags or fancy work) about nine inches apart and lace across the underside of board with tape or corset strings. This does away with the old way of tacking or pinning the sheet on board and makes it easy to remove.

Kidney Stew.

Cut kidney in small pieces, rejecting tubes and hard portion; blanch, then cook until tender, adding one onion finely minced. When tender thicken gravy slightly with two tablespoonfuls of butter rolled in two tablespoonfuls of flour; add one tablespoonful of finely minced parsley. Place a border of mashed potatoes around the dish and fill the kidney in the center.

CABINET BEHIND THE PRESIDENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The cabinet today assured President Wilson that its members were behind him in the decision to refuse to permit congressional interference in the international situation. Even the members who have been inclined to believe that conciliatory tactics would be worth trying endorsed the declaration contained in the president's letter to Senator Stone and his warnings to the house leaders who conferred with him earlier in the day.

The entire international situation was thoroughly canvassed. It was understood that the general sentiment expressed by both the president and Secretary Lansing was that hope for an amicable settlement of the questions at issue with Germany should not be abandoned. The indications were that Germany eventually will agree to stand by her original promises, Lansing is understood to have said.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The S. A. Club met with Mrs. Henry Torpeing of St. James street Thursday afternoon.

All plans are well under way for the leap year dance to be given by the Loyal Friends' Aid Society at the Lincoln School on Spring street, Tuesday, February 29.

Tuesday evening Miss Hazel Roosa, delightfully entertained a number of friends at her home in Hurley in honor of her birthday. Games and music were enjoyed, prizes being awarded. Leonard Lockwood and Lawrence Baker. Delicious refreshments were served and the guests voted Miss Roosa a royal entertainer. Those present were the Misses Hazel Roosa, Grace Pallen, Pearl Stauble, Ruth Vredenburg, Helen Stauble and Myra Whitney and the Messrs. Claude Pallen, Leonard Lockwood, Lawrence Baker, John Stauble, Ernest Pallen and Aubrey Arns.

The series of dances, which are being conducted every Saturday evening at Griffith's Hall on Hasbrouck avenue, under the auspices of the Blue Ribbon Club, continue to attract large crowds, and that the dance this coming Saturday night will be well attended is a foregone conclusion. That the dances being held by the club have reached a high degree of social prominence is evidenced by the fact that many were present from Saugerties, Catskill, Rosendale and other nearby towns on the occasion of their last affair. It was the general opinion of those present that the club had amply fulfilled its promise of "a good time to all present," and a vast amount of satisfaction was manifested by the guests. The club members had decided to continue the dances for an indefinite period. The success that is being attained by the Blue Ribbon Club is well merited, as it has always been the motto of the club to give its patrons the best regardless of the time or expense expended in order to secure success for their enterprises. The dancing will start promptly at 8 o'clock and will continue until midnight. The music for the occasion will be furnished by McLean's popular orchestra of this city.

Mystic Baseball Club Dance.

The dance which is to be given by the Mystic baseball team of this city, Thursday, March 2, at Pythian Hall, promises to be one of the most successful dances of the season, as the tickets are selling rapidly and everybody seems to be talking about it. A well-known orchestra of this city will furnish the music and the most popular pieces will be played.

Tonight the Night

To come to the Black and White Ball and see the strangest, most fantastically costumed dance you ever dreamed of. From the first roll of the drums at 9 o'clock, which heralds in the Monday Evening Club, till the last strains of Home Sweet Home in the wee small hours you will be glad you came for the club plans to give every one a splendid time, first, with the entertainment, which consists of fancy dancing and an extravaganza done in pantomime to appropriate music, next with the general dancing to an excellent orchestra, and last, with supper served by Mrs. Daley. Everything included in the price of the admission ticket. Added to that the sense of satisfaction you will feel at having aided a very worthy cause and you have all the ingredients of a successful dance.

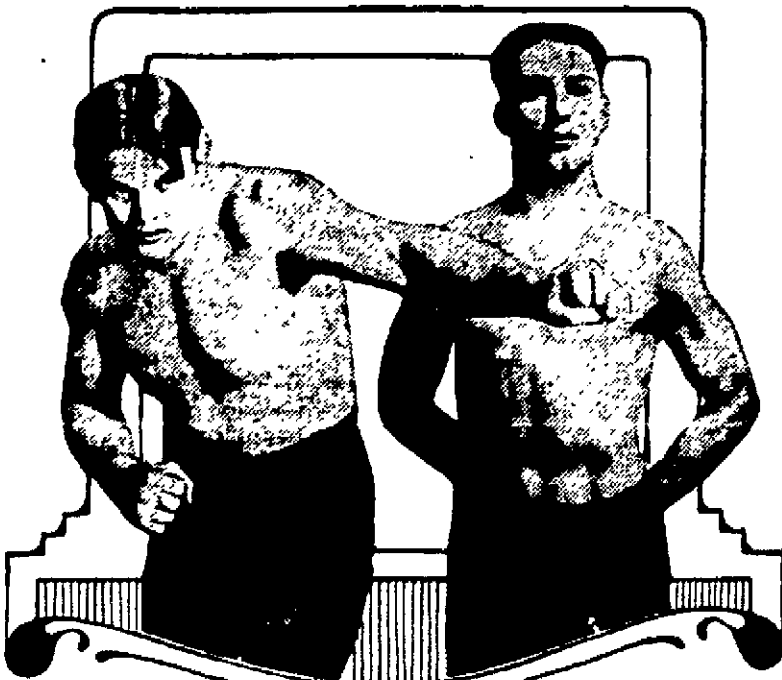

Birthday Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Crane most delightfully entertained a gathering of a number of relatives and friends at their new home at 15 East Strand, they having recently moved from Sleightsburch. It was also the 53rd birthday anniversary of Mrs. Crane. During the afternoon and evening singing, dancing and amusements were indulged in. Some of the latest as well as the old-time dances were danced. Mr. Crane being an old civil war veteran, told many reminiscences of his life while in battle between the north and south. He carries many scars in remembrance of the great conflict. A most bounteous dinner was partaken of and in the center of the dining table was a large birthday cake with the inscription on it, 53th Birthday. Those attending voted Mr. and Mrs. Crane most loyal entertainers.

DEVELOPER OF GOTCH DENIES STECHER YARN

FRANK GOTCH JOE STECHER

Emil Klank of Chicago, who looks after the interests of Frank Gotch, has received a letter from Farmer Burns, discoverer and developer of Frank Gotch as a world's champion possibility, in which this veteran denies he taught Joe Stecher the mat game.

Burns says he had read in the paper at times that he had taught Stecher how to wrestle, but declares this is all wrong.

"That is all wrong about me showing Stecher how to wrestle," says Burns. "But there is little doubt that Joe and his brother, from whom he learned a lot about the game, picked up a great deal of what they know out of my book on wrestling. I could teach both of these chaps a lot they don't know and Stecher will learn a lot of which he never dreamed if he ever hooks up with Gotch."

HOCKEY IS FAVORITE SPORT

Gaining Rapidly in Favor Throughout Country Where Ice is Available for the Game.

Riding on the crest of the present skating boom, hockey appears destined to become the premier winter sport throughout the country where either natural or artificial ice is available for the game. The installation of artificial rinks in the leading eastern and southern cities has greatly increased interest in the game in these sections, while in the North and Northwest, where temperature can be counted upon to provide ice several months each year, hockey is more popular than ever before.

This is due in part to the prominence given the sport by the colleges during the past few seasons. Hockey is now considered the major sport of the winter months at a number of leading eastern and western universities. The schedules of the teams are constantly increasing in length and importance of games, and the players as they are graduated from college continue to play for clubs either amateur or professional. International contests between the leading teams of United States and Canadian colleges or clubs no longer excite special comment although the interest in the result is keener than ever.

broke out. Since then he has performed wonderful feats. Only a few weeks ago he was decorated with military cross for special work of valor.

The retirement of Carpentier will be a big loss to the ring. He was rapidly reaching the top of the ladder in the pugilistic world when the war started. In fact, he was all but matched to fight for the world's title.

Says "Tin" Ear Shows Change in Boxing Game.

Abe Attell, former featherweight champion, says the "cauliflower" or "tin" ears carried by about nine out of every ten boxers nowadays is a sign of a change in the style of fighting, or, rather, a change in the style of old fighting.

"In the old days men stood more erect and picked off punches with their hands, jumped away from them or stepped inside of them," says Attell. "Now they bore in, head down or sideways, and stop punches with their heads. A rap on the ear causes the blood to coagulate, and a puffed-up listener is the result."

LITTLE PICK-UPS OF SPORT

Ralph Virett of the Pittsburgh Athletic association created a new record by swimming 150 yards backstroke in 2:00 3-5.

The San Jose race track of California may be cut up into building lots. The Woodland track, another famous course, is also on the market.

Women will be permitted to contest in the 1916 Grand American trap-shooting handicap, which will be held in St. Louis, beginning on August 20.

Having failed to show anything in the way of weekday baseball, New York is trying to get permission to try the Sunday article.

POSTAGE STAMPS

Study Their Backs and You May Come Across a Prize.

TWO CLASSES OF MARKINGS.

One of These is Accidental, and the Other is Intentional, but Either Adds to the Interest of the Specimen—A Collector's Hint.

It really is interesting to study the things which may be found upon the backs of stamps. One might group these into two classes—accidental and intentional. In the first class would come "double printings" and "offsets." In this instance by double printings we refer to those stamps which were accidentally printed upon both sides of the paper. These are very rare. By offset we mean where too much ink was used or the sheets laid upon each other while too wet, so that the color from the face of one sheet came off on the back of the one next to it.

These double impressions and offsets are found in the surcharging of stamps as well as in the original printings. Offsets are comparatively common and vary very much in intensity of color and completeness of design. In the early stamps of Great Britain the color of the stamp has changed the gum, or perhaps the paper, to a beautiful blue, and as there was little or no color on the portrait in the design, this head appears in white upon a blue background on the back of the stamp. This is called an "ivory head" and is very interesting.

Before we take up the matter of what is intentionally placed on the backs of stamps we might say that the paper upon which such stamps are printed usually shows best from the back. It may, of course, be either thin or thick, white or colored partially or completely through. It may have silk threads here and there like the United States revenue first issues on silk paper or silk all through like the later issues (1873) revenues, or it may be "granite" paper, like certain stamps of Austria, Switzerland and Japan. Again, there may be embedded in the paper silk threads running the whole length of the sheet, as in certain issues of Bavaria, Wurtemberg and especially Switzerland, where threads of many colors may be found.

In considering what is intentionally placed on the backs of stamps we note the first gum. This can easily be found in many shades—white, yellowish brown, dark brown, pink or rose. Some of the old German states especially have a fondness for pink gum.

The second thing to look for, intentionally placed on the backs of stamps, is something in the nature of a protection against cleaning or counterfeiting. Under this head would come grills or embossings. Excellent illustrations of these are found on our own stamps and again in those of Peru. Watermarks, while not placed on the backs of stamps, show much more plainly there and may be included in one's collection of "backs."

As a protection against counterfeiting, one may call attention to the numerals upon the backs of the early issues of Greece, for there are many errors and varieties to be found in these old Grecian stamps. Mexico protects some of her stamps by printing across the backs a line of blue moire. An irregular arrangement of curved lines, Sweden about 1896 commenced printing on the backs of her postage stamps a small blue picture of a post horn. This practice was continued some years.

As a protection against counterfeiting and also as a means of identifying stolen stamps Spain employs a set of serial numbers. The postoffice department keeps a list of the numbers on the backs of the stamps shipped to every postoffice, so that if one of these is robbed the authorities know and can identify, if found, the stolen stamps by the numbers they bear.

Thirdly, we consider those stamps where the printing on the backs was intentional, but placed there for other reasons than to prevent counterfeiting. In some instances these are the most interesting of all. We wish to call attention to three special instances. Portugal in 1895 issued a series of stamps commemorating the seven hundredth anniversary of the birth of St. Anthony of Padua. There are four designs in the series. But what interests us in this connection is the curious fact that upon the back of each stamp there is printed in tiny blue letters a Latin prayer. This series was also surcharged for use in the Azores.

When we study Nicaragua we are bewildered by the multiplicity of surcharges, especially after about 1900. But in 1911 matters came to a very bad pass. There were no more postage stamps, so the government took some revenue stamps, already once surcharged, and upon the backs of these revenue stamps printed a surcharge which made them good for postage. So here are revenue stamps with postage stamps on their backs, or postage stamps with surcharged revenue stamps on their backs. Either way they are very interesting. There were three values—5, 10 and 15 centavos—made. New Zealand furnishes us another type of interesting backs. Here we find a canny postoffice department confining an honest penny by selling the space upon the backs of its stamps for advertising purposes. The stamps of the issue 1882-91 may be found telling the merits of breakfast foods, patent medicines, soaps, etc. A complete collection would contain a good many varieties. We do not know how many.—St. Nicholas.

How to Mend China Not Smashed in Too Many Pieces.

A splendid cement for china is made as follows: Into a thick solution of gum arabic and water stir thoroughly plaster of paris until the mixture is of the consistency of cream. Apply with a brush to the broken edges of the china and join together. In three days the article cannot be broken in the same place. The whiteness of the cement also adds to its value.

How to Have an Attractive Bit of Greenery All Winter.

Have you ever grown a fern ball? This Japanese novelty is very attractive. It can be grown in a pot, but is prettier hanging from a string. It must be thoroughly soaked for an hour before hanging it up. Repeat this treatment every other day and never allow it to become perfectly dry.

How to Clean the Tiles That Are Smudgy and Dull.

Often the tiles in a hearth become so stained that water will not clean them. Try rubbing them with a piece of flannel soaked in turpentine; then wash them with a dry cloth. The tiles will then look fresh and new.

A Transfusion

By EUNICE BLAKE

George Dobbins enlisted in London for the pan-European war, went to the front and was severely wounded. Removed to a hospital in rear of the fighting lines, he lingered between life and death. His family were wealthy and willing to spend any amount of money to insure his recovery. An effort was made to secure the services of a surgeon to go to Belgium and give his special attention to pulling through the son and brother. Every surgeon in England who had not gone to the front had more than he could do at home. Miss Amelia Dobbins, George's sister, was engaged to an investigator in the British institution for physical investigation. She begged him to go with her to her brother, and the appeal coming from the woman he loved won him over.

When a man's mind is running in a given line it is difficult to divert it. Surgeon Blake had for some time been investigating the subject of transfusion of blood. He had not only been successful in operations of the kind, but had begun to endeavor to search for results accruing from different kinds of blood injected into different kinds of animals. He had replaced the blood of a man with that of an orang outang, and the patient had developed a propensity to climb trees. A liberal and benevolent gentleman, who had received the blood of a miser had become a skindint. These and other cases had convinced the investigator that racial peculiarities are in the blood.

As soon as Dr. Blake saw his patient, who was much enervated and very pale, he said that he needed blood and must have blood at once or he would die. It is not every one who will give his or her blood for another, and the person who was willing to give his blood for George Dobbins did not appear. His sister volunteered, and since she was a hearty young woman, the doctor did not oppose the acceptance of her offer. He had every confidence that she would assume no great risk. But to supply the blood lost by Miss Dobbins some one must spare a part of his for her supply. A young soldier who was struck with Miss Dobbins volunteered, and the operation was performed, the blood the lady gave her brother being made up to him by Charlie Hopkins.

Not long after the transfusion Dr. Blake was heard at the front, and to the surprise of all Miss Dobbins rushed frantically out and, approaching the firing line from the rear, asked a musket from a wounded man and, joining the colors, fought bravely. The troops, astounded at seeing a woman fighting beside them, rallied around her and under her leadership attacked the Germans in one of the trenches so vigorously that they drove them out. When the fight was over Miss Dobbins was decorated on the field.

Only Dr. Blake attributed Miss Dobbins' bravery, so unusual in a woman, to any special cause. He made inquiries as to Charlie Hopkins and learned that he was one of the bravest men in the army. The doctor was confirmed in his theory that the blood is the basis of all the different traits that flesh is heir to.

George Dobbins, after having received his sister's blood, improved rapidly and in time returned to the colors. He had enlisted as a private, but was soon promoted to be lieutenant on account of his coolness in face of the enemy. What was the astonishment of his comrades when at the first fight in which he took part after his return to the front he paled, turned and fled.

He was reprimanded by his commanding officer and informed that he must be tried for cowardice. He begged for a chance to redeem himself, asserting that the cause of his flight was that he had not sufficiently recovered from his recent confinement to stand up under fire. He was given the desired opportunity and returned to his command. But when a dash was made on the German trenches the men went over them while Dobbins' legs again carried his unwilling self to the rear.

This time a court martial was convened to try him. News of his disgrace went to England, and Dr. Blake, hearing of it, called upon George's father and announced his belief that the transfusion of blood from a woman had given him a woman's constitutional inability to bear arms.

So great was the likeness between George and Amelia that when both wore the same kind of garments they could not well be told apart. George at the sister's suggestion feigned illness and was taken to a hospital, from whence his sister spirited him away to the coast and sent him home in a woman's dress as herself. Then she appeared as George Dobbins for some especially hazardous duty to redeem her lost reputation. It was granted. She stole into the enemy's lines, fired an ammunition receptacle, destroyed it and got back safely to the British line.

An order was issued that the court martial convened to try Lieutenant George Dobbins for cowardice be dismissed, and Lieutenant Dobbins was promoted for gallant and meritorious service in the destruction of enemy ammunition.

The real George Dobbins is at home knitting for the soldiers. Amelia Dobbins is fighting at the front, while Dr. Blake is lecturing on "The Blood: The Foundation of Our Constitutional Nature."

The Distinction. "Pa," asked Willie, "what's the difference between an invalid and a sick person?" "An invalid, my son," answered papa, "has money."—Judge.

HIGH SCHOOL
SOPHS BEAT NO. 6

Wednesday afternoon a girls' team of high school sophomores defeated the girls' team from No. 6 school by a score of 11-9.

The game was played in the high school gymnasium, and the No. 6 team should be congratulated upon doing so well on a strange court. In fact had it not been for the exceptional playing of Miss Hurley the young high school team would have been badly beaten.

Miss Seigel of the high school refereed and Miss Ruth Smith, whose efforts are turning out this promising team from No. 6 school, umpired.

The line-up of the winners was as follows:

Miss M. Kingman, c.	0	0	0
Miss Hurley, rf.	4	3	11
Miss Van Wageningen, rg.	0	0	0

Totals 4 3 11

The High School Middlets are looking for more worlds to conquer and have challenged the Poughkeepsie Y. M. C. A. Boys to play them here in the high school gymnasium on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

K. OF C. TO HAVE
BASEBALL LEAGUE

Seven weeks more before the opening of the baseball season finds plans in readiness for a Hudson Valley Baseball League of the Knights of Columbus. According to reports, Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Hudson, Newburgh, Beacon, Wappingers Falls will be represented. It is the intention to have games on Saturday and Sunday with a small admission fee.

The idea is meeting with enthusiasm in the cities named and plans will be discussed at a meeting in Columbus Institute Poughkeepsie, on Sunday, March 11th. The Kingston Council had a baseball team last season that compared favorably with anything in the Hudson Valley and interest is keen for the league.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Feb. 25.—A spectacular five cornered race for pennant honors in the American League is promised by a study of the "dope" from this mid-winter angle.

The Red Sox, Yankees, White Sox, Tigers and Browns all seem to have a wonderful chance to grab off the bunting. The Senators do not size up as powerful as any one of the quintet, yet they may spring a surprise. The Athletics and Indians look no better than they did last season, when they staged a thrilling battle for the cellar championship.

The world champions probably will take the field as they lined up in 1915. There have been a number of additions to the Lanolin crew since the last championship battle was fought, but none of the newcomers looks good enough to oust any of the regulars. Bill Carrigan, the managerial person, is hopeful, however, of building up a powerful secondary defense with his new talent.

Yankees Wonderfully Improved.

No team in the Johnson circuit has such a wealth of fine material as the Yankees. Reckless expenditure of money has added to the roster of the once joke ball club, some of the brightest stars that shone last year in the Federal League, American Association and International League.

The Yankee infield and outfield promise to rank among the greatest in the country. They have speed, fielding brilliance and batting power. Behind the bat, the Yanks have been fortified, while their pitching staff shows greater promise than any other club in the league. To augment the regulars of last year—Caldwell, Keating and Fischer—there are Nick Cullop, the southpaw star of the Federals, Allen Russell, who was a sensation in the International; Dan Tipple, who made a great record in the American Association; Bob Shawkey, once-time Athletic; George Mogridge, who won 24 out of 35 combats in the Western League, and a dozen others.

The White Sox surely will be in the fight. They have been strengthened where they needed it—in secondary defense—by the purchase of some real stars from the bushes. The Sox looked like world beaters last year—and for a time they did beat everything in sight. Then they dropped behind. That was because they lacked a real wallop—because their reserve force was not up to standard. This year it's different—and White Sox rooters are dreaming pennant dreams.

Watch Those Tigers.

Hughie Jennings hopes to find among his "rookies" at least two pitchers who can stand the major League gaff. If his hopes are realized those Tigers will be the team that must be beaten by the club that wins the pennant. No outfit in the country has greater offensive strength. Lack of air-tight pitching lost the 1915 pennant for the jugglers. Give Jennings two young pitchers of real worth to add to his collection of veterans—and then watch those Tigers go.

The Browns size up as the greatest combination that ever represented the Missouri metropolis. The merging of the Browns of 1915 with the Soufeds has placed under the management of Fielder Jones the grandest collection of ball players that any St. Louis team has owned. Jones has enough good ball players to form two great clubs. His problem is to build the most powerful machine from the many cogs at his disposal. If he builds right—and Jones is a wizard in that line—the Browns will be up in the fight all the way.

Clark Griffith, as ever, is emitting pennant predictions. His club does not look much better than it did last year, when it never was in the running, but Griffith nurses the hope that some of his men will begin hitting and that a few of his pitchers will improve a point where they can be of material assistance to the "Human Bullet."

The "Hopeless Twins."

Connie Mack asks you all not to confine his club to last place "because we may surprise you." But Connie's timber is so green that it seems unlikely that he can build a machine within the next two or three years that will have even a fair chance for the pennant. The Athletics, in other words, ought to finish seventh—if they don't finish eighth.

And now as for the Indians. On the roster are a dozen or more likely looking youngsters. But if two of them develop into real major leaguers, the Indians will be lucky, because the ratio of bushers' success in the big leagues is smaller than one in six. The Indians have not been strengthened by the purchase of major league talent. The regular team of 1915 was, at best, a mediocre outfit. Its pitching power was a minus quality; its batting strength, after Joe Jackson was sold, skidded off. In fielding the Naps were only ordinary.

Barring a miracle, the Indians won't finish better than sixth—and most likely they'll finish eighth.

New York, Feb. 25.—The first squad of Giants will leave for the training camp at Marlin today. Eleven players will be in the squad. They will be led by Christy Mathewson.

New York, Feb. 25.—Leach Cross has sung his "Swan song." The dentist-fighter says he is through. He will fight no more. This is final, not a "Patti retirement." Leach puts up no alibi for his recent defeat by Milburn Saylor. He simply says he is not as good as he used to be, and is going to get out of the game while his health is good.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 25.—A friendly boxing bout between William Hildebrandt and August Naisel, both aged 14, resulted in the death of Hildebrandt following a hard blow on the jaw.

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 25.—Hot Springs today showed the first symptoms of becoming a baseball training camp when the vanguard of the Brooklyn Nationals arrived. Jack Coombs was in command of the arrivals.

St. Louis, Feb. 25.—Ted Lewis knocked out Harry Trandall of St. Louis in the seventh round here last night.

Philadelphia, Feb. 25.—Alfredo de Oro lost a little of the lead he had over Charles Ellis in the three-cushion billiard championship match when the second block was finished last night. The score now stands 100 to 89. Ellis making two more points than the champion last night. The final block of 50 will be played tonight.

SHANDAKEN.

Shandaken, Feb. 24.—Mrs. Eliza Votce, widow of Jerome Votce, who died last week, was buried on Tuesday. The services were held in the M. E. Church, the Rev. D. N. F. Blakeney officiating, and was largely attended. The interment was in the Coons cemetery.

Low Woolheater, an old resident of this place, suddenly expired while seated at the table eating on Tuesday night.

The Rev. W. L. DeGross and Mrs. DeGross of Philadelphia are in town, called here by the sudden illness and death of Mr. DeGross's sister, Mrs. Votce.

Oliver Holden, an aged resident of this place, is very ill. Miss Edith Bodley of the state normal college at Albany was suddenly called here by the illness and death of her mother, Mrs. Votce.

Coming to an embargo placed by the New York Central Railroad Company the Fulton Furniture Company are unable to dispose of their output as their products go to parts in other countries.

Mrs. E. Gildersleeve and daughter of Kingston attended the funeral of Mrs. Jerome Votce.

Three deaths have occurred in this place within a short time; all quite old people. Frank Verry, Mrs. Jerome Votce and Low Woolheater. The winter has been real hard on the old folks.

Hiram Evans and sister, Maud, of Albany are visiting friends hereabouts.
